

Quit Foreign Soil Khrushchev Plan?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI)—Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born industrialist, predicts that Premier Khrushchev will propose that both Russia and the United States immediately withdraw all their military forces from foreign soil along with drastic curtailment of arms spending by both countries.

U.S. EMBARGO HAS BACKFIRED KHRUSHCHEV TELLS BUSINESS

Will Overtake U.S. Faster Than Planned

NEW YORK (AP)—Premier Khrushchev told a gathering of businessmen Thursday night that United States restrictions on trade with Russia have backfired and in some instances even helped the Soviet Union.

The Soviet leader also said that production in his homeland is expanding so enormously that Russia can overtake the U.S. in economic development "more quickly than envisaged in our plans."

Khrushchev spoke to the Economic Club of New York at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Khrushchev struck twice at the U.S. embargo applying to sales of strategic goods to the Soviet Union.

"We are fighting and we will fight against all embargo lists in trade as an unreasonable practice," Khrushchev said in a prepared speech in Russian.

Some people — politicians rather than businessmen — seriously contend that by refusing to trade with Russia, "the United States retards the economic development of the U.S.S.R. and weakens its defensive might."

10 Years' Progress

Then, with his reference to Russian scientific achievements, Khrushchev told his audience that all present were familiar with the reports on Soviet Sputniks, rockets and economic growth. This progress has never been so swift, he said, as in the last decade.

Khrushchev said he had told former governor Averell Harriman of New York at a reception earlier and was repeating it that "the results of the ban on trade with the U.S.S.R. imposed in the United States as a repressive measure against the Soviet Union have been the very opposite of those hoped for by its authors."

He continued: "We have even benefitted to a certain extent by the policy which the United States pursued with regard to the Soviet Union in the field of trade."

To back that up, the Communist leader said that Russia had to develop the manufacture of machinery it did not have previously and had intended to buy from the U.S. Russia, he said, no longer depends on anyone for this machinery, so curtailment of trade with the Soviet Union "has strengthened rather than weakened us."

What Is the Sense?

So, he asked, what sense is there in American restrictions?

The premier said Russia's trade with Britain, West Germany, France and Italy is rising. He asked another question:

"Why, then, must America remain apart? The question of trade is one of profit. If you do not find it profitable to buy our goods or sell your goods to us, do what you consider necessary."

Khrushchev tossed in a bit of a warning.

"It sometimes happens," he said, "that too choosy a bride will wait too long and find herself an old maid."

Saying some people are blinded by their dislike of socialism and communism, Khrushchev told the businessmen Russia is developing its economy and culture more quickly than is the United States.

His Own Ideology

He said he didn't want to impose his own ideology, even though he does not hide his Communist party membership. But, he said, statistics talk for themselves of Russia's rapidly growing economy might. He called the results miraculous and went into a list of specific examples.

Whereas the plan for 1959 called for a 7.7-per-cent increase in production, he said, the actual increase in the first eight months of the year was 12 per cent. He translated this into an output rising $10,000,000,000 over the expected amount for the year.

And Khrushchev said that both in over-all economic development as well as in per capita production, Russia will be able to overtake the U.S. more quickly than was planned.

He and other Soviet leaders have said in the past that 1970 was the date for catching up. A new seven-year plan, ballyhooed as a major step in the drive to overtake American industrial output, began last January.

Russians claim they already are producing more steel, for example, than Britain, West Germany and France combined.

Art Treasures on Display

Centuries-old art treasures go on display tonight at 636 Fisgard, when Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association celebrates its 75th anniversary. Display is open to public between 7 p.m. and 11 p.m. tonight, and tomorrow between 1 p.m. and 11 p.m. Here Mrs. Peter Seto, 725 Queens, keeps wary eye on rare Thailand Buddha, left, more than 300 years old, and 500-year-old statue of Quan Yin, goddess of Burma. Laos Farm Garb Masks Troops

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Laotian government troops are wearing farmers' clothes to prevent easy identification in their guerrilla war with Communist rebels, Brig. Gen. Ouan Rittkone said Thursday.

The army commander said fighting still is going on around Sam Teu fort, in north-eastern Sam Neua province, which has changed hands four times since Saturday.

As he announced continuing fighting, the United Nations fact-finding mission was given a 100-minute military briefing from maps—but no documentary evidence as yet—of Laotian claims that Communist North Viet Nam is aiding the Pathet Laos rebels.

Fire caused an estimated $2,000 damage last night to Cec's Automotive Service, owned by Cecil Lines of 10930 West Saanich Road. Cause of the blaze was not known.

Chief G. A. Gardner of the Sidney volunteer fire department said that heat cracked all the windows in the cement block structure, blistered the paint on a car and destroyed an outboard engine, a number of tools and cans of paint.

Vanguard III Goes into Orbit Ending U.S. Losing Streak

India Death Toll High

River Bursts Into Bazaar

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The flooding Tapi River burst through a protective wall and poured into the city of Surat Thursday, covering two square miles within five minutes. Hundreds were believed drowned.

The waters rushed into the main bazaar area with such speed that hundreds were trapped. The water was 12 feet deep in some places. Many houses and cattle were swept away.

The inundation took place when one of the two ancient city walls collapsed as the river rose two feet above the danger mark. Several policemen keeping an eye on the river were reported missing.

The Bombay state government said flood waters from Tapi and Narmada rivers had devastated coastal towns and villages. They estimated 5,000 peasant homes were washed away in the Ahmedabad district alone.

Police Pry Car Top To Free Hurt Pair

Police had to pry up the top of a large sedan to release one of two sailors injured

when their car crashed into a utility pole on Esquimalt Road late last night.

In "fair" condition at HMCS Naden Hospital following the crash were Joseph L. Medlyn, driver, and Paul J. Boyle, passenger, both from HMCS Naden.

Police said the car was travelling towards Naden when it skidded on a curve near the Boilermakers' Hall and slammed sideways against a utility pole on the right hand side of the road near Island Weavers Ltd.

Second Snow For Quebec

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—The Saguenay district's second snowfall of the season heaped up 10 inches of snow Thursday around the villages of St. Gabriel de Ferland and Ste. Bernadette de Boileau.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 1:08 a.m. PDT today that a Vanguard III satellite has gone into successful orbit around the earth — America's second attempt within 14 hours at placing a satellite in orbit.

The sleek, 72-foot-tall Vanguard, carrying a 50-pound "ice cream cone" satellite equipped to furnish data for man's first space map, roared from its pad at 10:20 p.m.

For Project Vanguard, which closes its four-year career with this shot, it marked its third satellite success in 11 tries.

FAILURE

Yesterday, new-born Project Transit launched a Thor-Able rocket with a 235-pound instrumented package, but a faulty third-stage apparently caused failure. Transit hopes to orbit five earth satellites as the basis of a new system to aid navigation.

The pencil-thin Vanguard, whose moonlet was designed to study the earth's magnetic field, solar X-rays and space environmental conditions, belched yellow fire from the first of its three stages, eased from its pad slowly at first, then quickly gained speed.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) indicated the planned orbit would send the moonlet over the United States as far north as a line extending roughly from Columbia, S.C., past Atlanta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex., to slightly north of Long Beach, Calif.

ICE CREAM CONE

The magnesium-aluminum moonlet looked like an oversized ice cream cone—a 20-inch sphere whose 26-inch tapered tube held a magnetometer planned to precede the ball in flight. Sixty-two small silver-zinc cells with an estimated 90-day lifetime provided power.

NASA said data from the satellite would be made available to the 66 nations—apparently including Russia—of the international geophysical year. Scientists planned to in-terrogate the satellite about 50 times a day, or about twice during each eight-minute pass over a tracking station.

NASA said space charts would be drawn from this and future magnetometer experiments, giving man his first space route map in his bid for the moon and planets. The magnetometer was designed to detect high-radiation pockets which a space traveller would try to avoid.

PREDICTED STORMS

The magnetometer also was designed to study unaccountable disturbances called magnetic storms, which rage in the earth's umbrella-like magnetic field. Scientists sought to learn whether the storms could be predicted and compensated for.

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev flared angrily Thursday night at hecklers and threatened to leave a banquet hall unless they listened to his answer to a question.

He had been given a dinner by the Economic Club of New York and was involved in a question-and-answer period following a major address when he became angry.

The Soviet leader calmed down afterward but not until he had heatedly shouted:

"Surely you must show enough hospitality not to interrupt."

"If there is no desire to listen to me, I can go."

Khrushchev was visibly upset when one of the dinner guests yelled "answer the question," and others groaned with dissent at his reply.

He had been asked to explain why Russia jammed American radio broadcasts, censored dispatches of American correspondents in the Soviet Union and did not allow free exchange of American publications.

Khrushchev halted his address and, staring straight ahead, said in a voice rising with anger:

"Gentlemen, I am an old sparrow; so to say, and you can't muddle me."

"I came here not to beg anything. I came here as a representative of a great country which has made a great October revolution and no cries can do away with the achievement of our people.

"I will reply to the question when there are no interruptions."

The more than 1,000 guests, a cross-section of some of the country's top business leaders, sat quietly while Khrushchev went on to answer.

His reply was that what the Soviet public listens to and reads should be decided by the Soviet government and its people and not by any outside government.

Red Carpet Ready

German Defence Chief To Visit Esquimalt

'Ex-Derelict' Joins Cruise

Charlie McGilvary, described by Victoria Salvation Army officials as "a derelict who found God," has joined the R. W. Garret family on its missionary cruise to the Fiji Islands. McGilvary left the Harbor Light mission yesterday to join the Garrets on their boat, Southern Cross II, now on its way to the South Seas.

Red carpet treatment will be given West German Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss when he visits here Sept. 29.

The RCN destroyer escort Fraser will meet him in Vancouver the evening of Sept. 28 and bring the defence minister and his party to Esquimalt.

The ship will be met by an honor guard and band when it steams into the harbor at 9 a.m. Dr. Strauss will visit Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast, at 9.30 a.m. and begin a tour of HMC Dockyard at 10 a.m.

The party will lunch at the Canadian Services College at Royal Roads at noon and then fly to Comox to tour the RCAF base. Members will be flown back to Victoria in the late afternoon to resume their Canadian tour.

Dr. Strauss will be accompanied by Gen. Joseph Kammhuber, chief of the German air force, and other West German defence officials.

Tax-Exemption Plan Draws Cheer, Jeer

Proposal to exempt senior citizens' housing projects from municipal taxation yesterday drew unqualified approval from officials of the projects involved and censure from acting Mayor Arthur Dowell.

"We're delighted to hear of the possibility," declared Mrs. May Campbell, president of the Senior Citizens' Housing Society. She was commenting on statements made Wednesday night in Kelowna by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black, who said he plans to recommend such a law to the cabinet.

"Before we built, the city had two lots on their hands and no revenue, so they aren't losing anything," Mrs. Campbell continued. "Furthermore, if they cut out the taxes we could lower the rents accordingly, and it could mean a difference of $5 to $7 a month to each tenant."

However, Acting Mayor Dowell had a different story, and a counter-proposal to go with it. He suggested that if the provincial government really wants to do something for senior citizens, then it should pay the $28 homeowner's allowance on each dwelling unit instead of penalizing city property-owners by ending taxation.

"These houses are run on a non-profit basis and it's a wonderful thing," he said. "But rather than penalize the municipality, why not just give the senior citizens the same privileges as the property owners the $28 grant?"

Income Average

Island Way Down

OTTAWA (CP) — Workers in the Alberni-Port Alberni area have a higher average personal income than those in Victoria, but all Vancouver Island centres are well down in the list of Canadian cities.

An analysis of income tax statistics, based on 1957 figures, was issued yesterday by the revenue department of the federal government. It shows Alberni-Port Alberni ranking 20th in Canada with an average personal income of $3,982 compared to Victoria, 26th with an average of $3,919.

Nanaimo is listed 33rd in the rankings with an average of $3,857.

Top city in the nation as far as personal income is concerned is the northern Ontario steel centre of Sault Ste. Marie, with an average of $4,460 as of 1957. The Pas and Flin Flon, Man., which led in 1955, dropped to fifth place with $4,210.

The Ontario oil centre of Sarnia retained second place with an average income of $4,418. The mining centre of Sudbury-Coppercliff in Northern Ontario moved up to third in 1957 with $4,279.

Behind The Pas and Flin Flon were Trail and adjoining Rossland, in British Columbia. The twin B.C. communities ranked sixth in 1957 with $4,181.

Actions Are the Test

IF the current visit of Premier Khrushchev to the United States for private talks with President Eisenhower should pave the way for more co-operation on all sides for the settlement of international tensions that would be of great benefit. In practical terms, something approaching an impasse nullifying all discussion at the diplomatic level has followed the year-long, adamant attitude of the Soviets on the status of Berlin, and the equally unyielding response to this by the United States. The stalemate resulting has been direct, and up to the present static; a clear division over methods by the two largest powers in the world.

If in the course of his western conversations Mr. Khrushchev comes to understand some of the underlying reasons why not only the United States but also in varying degree every nation in the West find the Russian attitude over Berlin impossible to accept in its present form—as a flat ultimatum—that could lead to some revision at the Kremlin of an unworkable policy. It largely has been the issues of a segregated Berlin and the invited withdrawal of Allied troops from West Germany that have proved the stumbling block to the settlement of other and still larger issues. Disarmament by stages, retreat from nuclear war potential, restoration of international confidence, and a more balanced opportunity for world trade, all hinge on some decisive meeting of minds between West and East.

Any sign from Premier Khrushchev that his journey to Washington has been made in good faith, with the object of reassessing the causes of past differences and the aim of at least lessening them, will be received as progress. It is the future action of the Soviets in world diplomacy however which will supply the real test. For every amelioration of tone he has shown during his present visit, Mr. Khrushchev is on record with its virtual opposite in declarations this year before the Eastern bloc and the Soviet satellite nations. At the Warsaw conference earlier this summer there were Soviet boasts over the Berlin crisis and anything but a softening attitude in the "cold war." So there will be the antecedent as well as the present weather to consider when Mr. Khrushchev reveals finally whatever it is he has come to say.

Notwithstanding that, it is something to have the most powerful figure in Soviet Russia touring the United States—not as Pravda usually depicts it but as in fact it is. It does not look like a land bristling with aggressive intentions to Canadians who cross its borders daily. If there are "warmongers" or "firebrands" in its councils, they haven't been successful nor have they been given much attention. The everyday facts of life Mr. Khrushchev should be able to gauge for himself. He is a shrewd man, while none need doubt his authority in his own country.

No Room for Chuckles

MR. LESTER PEARSON is reported to have said with a chuckle when talking about defence matters: "They have appointed another defence minister." But why should he chuckle? It was his own, former, government which introduced the system of associate defence ministers. Was that Liberal example bad? If there is any ambiguity in his mind about the respective authorities of Mr. Pearson and Mr. Walker, it should soon be dispelled. In this respect the Diefenbaker regime will follow the same pattern as its predecessor.

The federal opposition leader seems not to like the continuance by the Diefenbaker government of measures initiated by the Liberal government. He complains that the Conservatives are taking credit for welfare policies initiated by his party. These policies were inevitable over the years as society changed its concepts of responsibility, and the Liberals would have been remiss in not promoting such legislation. Did he expect the Conservatives to abolish welfare schemes? One doubts that they are making foolish claims. What they have done is improve on Liberal bounties, as old-age pensioners have cause to remember with gratitude.

It is the job of the opposition leader to make hay when he can by criticizing the reigning government. Mr. Pearson is much more free with suggestions than he was while in office, however. He indicts existing defence policies, blandly overlooking that these in the main were a legacy left on the doorstep of the Diefenbaker administration. The Conservatives have been in office only two years; they are coping with problems created largely by the Liberals before them.

The Arrow program, the Bomarc issue, the radar defence lines, the Norad command—all matters of delicate decision tied up with the sovereign responsibilities of Canada—were a heritage to which the Conservatives fell heir. So was the appointment of an associate defence minister. In some important respects also the Conservatives had to unscramble situations brought about by initial actions of their Liberal predecessors.

Buy Symphony Tickets Now

LOVERS of orchestral music are being given an opportunity this week to demonstrate in a practical way their appreciation of the splendid contribution which the Victoria Symphony Orchestra makes to the community and to their own personal enjoyment. This is the week in which the parent society makes its annual offering of season tickets, and the degree of confidence with which the society may prepare for the concert season soon to come depends very largely upon the result.

It is not an appeal for gifts of money but a sale at bargain prices of future pleasure of the most satisfying and inspiring kind. Victoria's orchestra, acknowledged to be one of the finest in Canada, has the moral and vocal support of many organizations and thousands of residents, but like everything else the presentation of symphonic music has its materialistic side, and it is practical support at the box office which assures success.

To those who intend to be present at the concerts in any case, and to others who have yet to experience the delight which only a living orchestra can impart, one cannot commend too highly this "buy early" appeal. Advance purchase of season tickets not only assures the buyer of a place in the limited seating capacity of the theatre but also relieves the society of some of the financial uncertainty accompanying an undertaking of this magnitude.

Interpreting the News

Decade as Chancellor

By PHIL NEWSON
UPI Foreign Editor

A MAN of seemingly frail physical stature but a Hercules in the shaping of free world destinies observed an anniversary on Sept. 15.

It was 10 years ago, at the age of 73, that Konrad Adenauer took over as chancellor of the newly established Federal Republic of Germany.

He has held the job ever since, standing as a stubborn rock against which the political ambitions of lesser men have shattered in his own West Germany and as a bulwark frustrating the aims of the Soviets to take over the whole of Germany for communism.

Khrushchev has reserved some of his bitterest words for Adenauer whose parchment skin, sunken eyes and outward frailty would seem at odds with the spirit of a man who thrives on a battle and who has proved himself one of Germany's most astute politicians.

As a champion against communism, it was significant that it was Adenauer whom President Eisenhower first sought out in Europe to explain the purpose of this week's talks with Khrushchev.

Adenauer's chief concern was that there should be no "sell out" of West Germany, and especially of West Berlin.

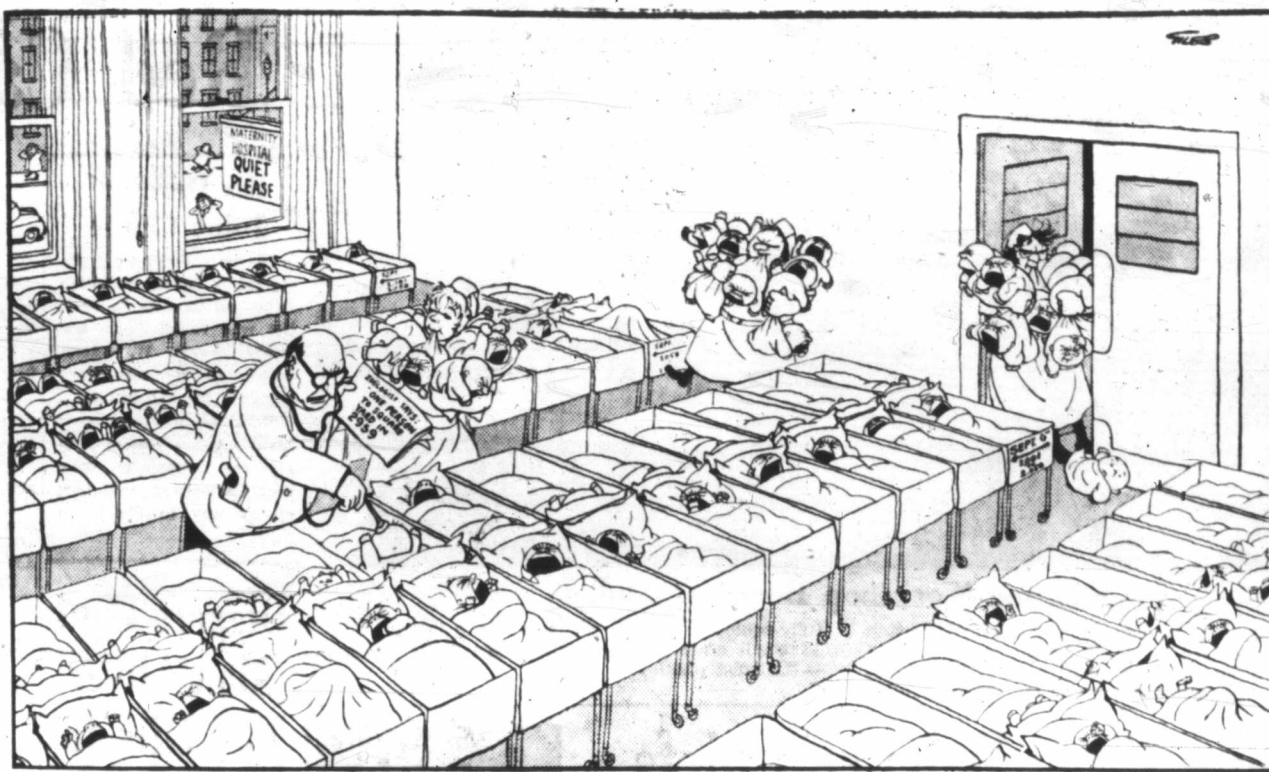

In Germany, Adenauer affectionately is called "the old man."

In 1933 it seemed that his public career should be finished.

The Nazis ousted him then as Mayor of Cologne. He came back to the job after 12 years of enforced idleness only to be fired again by the British in 1945.

At the age of 70 he founded the Christian Democratic Union which came to power with the birth of the new republic in 1949 and elected him chancellor by the margin of a single vote. The voters re-elected him in 1953 by an amazing majority and he has remained in power ever since. With his political allies, he is assured a working majority of approximately 100 votes in the German Bundestag.

This amazing man is both a guaranty of German democracy and at the same time the opposite of the democratic spirit. He believes firmly in no one, but Adenauer.

"One minute they tell us there won't be anybody around in 1959 . . ."

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

THE Ottawa Journal says no one can respect the hypocrites who denounce legalized lotteries and then go round the corner to buy a sweep-stake ticket.

Perhaps there are a lot of folk of this ilk. Certainly there are a lot of bingo boards and prize drawings of one kind and another.

Not that the Journal favors lotteries, for hospitals for instance. It thinks there must be some better answer to the problem of hospital financing. The trouble is no one seems to come up with such an answer.

It is only the rates that keep going up.

The lottery business, admittedly, is a complicated argument. And not necessarily a hypocritical one albeit smug sanctimony finds its way into it. People are inconsistent in themselves, although not in what they see in others, and so a person might frown on lotteries in general and yet buy a ticket in one particular prize drawing.

He can easily rationalize his own behaviour.

The Journal itself rather rationalizes things when it says that while people always have "gambled" the state shouldn't give its blessing to gambling—any more than to a lot of other foolish things people do.

Like taking a drink of liquor, maybe. The state seems to have no compunction about aiding and abetting this human frailty. If moral judgments are to rule it well could be asailed as hypocritical in this respect.

Of course every one who takes a little sip of the water of life, as it has been called, isn't a drunkard and thereby detrimental to himself and others. Like the maxim about the love of money being the root of all evil—and not money itself although the distinction is difficult to draw—it is the immoderation that counts. But then lots of lottery ticket buyers are moderate in their bids for fate's smiles.

It is the moral platitudes that are frivole, as a matter of fact. If a national lottery, the mere purchase of a ticket that might return one some money not earned by brawn or brain, is beyond the pale then so should be speculation in housing, on the race track or in the stock market. In a dozen other "games" of one kind or another that people take with the blessing of government.

Hospital lotteries might not be a sound thing from the standpoint of regular financing or administration. I don't know about the internal nuances involved. Lottery denial on these grounds might be well founded and acceptable.

Simply on the ground that "gambling" is bad for us as a people, however, the denial is too thin for logical acceptance.

One cannot forget, either, that in some other countries legalized sweepstakes and bond lotteries are taken in stride with no apparent harm to the character of the nation concerned. It would be smugly offensive of us to assume we are the purer people; or unflattering to suggest we are too immature to absorb such a human peccadillo ourselves.

Governments went into the liquor business because they knew people would drink, and so they thought it good to control its sale and enrich themselves at the same time. It is hard to admire the half-splitting that shuns similar participation in lotteries.

It reminds one of the Journal's hypocrite who ran round the corner to buy a ticket.

Letter from London

Heavy Odds Favor Tories Oct. 8

By RICHARD L. THOMAS

ANYONE interested in political form in Britain may be intrigued to know that a bookmaker who offered ten to one against Labor being returned to office on Oct. 8 on the afternoon of the announcement of the date of the general election, cut back to seven to one by the evening. One presumes because of the pressure of business.

The public opinion polls are all agreed that the Conservatives are strongly favored by the electorate. The Labor leader, Mr. Gaitskill, flew back from Moscow—possibly not the best place to fly back from at this moment—and the chairman of the Labor party, Mrs. Barbara Castle, opened the election with a platitudinous broadside when she declared that Labor would win because they would make election day "A day of national remembrance. Remembrance for Suez, Cyprus, Hola, old-age pensioners, the cruelty of the Rent Act and the slow murder of basic industries."

Mrs. Castle, it may be remembered, is the good lady who attacked British troops for their conduct in Cyprus during the violence there, and received the censure of her own party. She is a left-wing Bevanite who, fortunately for Labor prospects, surrendered her chairmanship of the party by effluxion of time before the election campaign really opened.

But broadly—what is it all about? The socialists accuse Mr. Macmillan of hypocrisy, of using President Eisenhower for election purpose, of importing American techniques in electioneering, of having no policy except those he has stolen from the Labor party and broadly of trying to bring off an immense confidence trick on the British people which they intend to prevent.

Labor, in its own view, is a poor party financially fighting the money bags of capitalism. It believes that the coal industry must be saved (they nationalized it) even if it means prohibition on the use of oil fuel for certain purposes; it believes that there should be more nationalization of industry, starting with steel and extending to banks, insurance and sugar. It believes that international relations should be founded on a non-nuclear club allowing the United States and Russia to do any fighting which may be considered necessary. It also promises millions for the arts, the health service and social benefits, a capital gains tax and a policy of more pay for less work.

The Conservatives on their side are relying on their record and asking for a continuance of the same. Taxation is down, most controls have been eliminated, the pound is firm, gold and dollar reserves buoyant, pensions are up, unemployment below 2 per cent and the average Briton has "never had it so good." Do you, ladies and gentlemen, want another dose of socialism with nationalization, controls and international experiment or do you want peace and material well-being?

The answer will be found in the ballot box on Oct. 8.

And what does our famous impartial observer, our student of politics and our well-informed circle think about this? There is more than a suggestion that both sides are playing to the gallery, that both sides are planning to use slick salesmanship and sell their party like other people sell detergents. The Conservatives possibly have the larger appropriation, but Labor is not far behind. Labor has probably a $3,000,000 election fund. There is a lot of sickly sentiment on both sides, with a mother and child complex. "The party which offers to supply free baby sitters stands the best chance of winning the election," said one cynic.

Suez? A Labor hope is that it may have some effect on the election. At the time Labor was divided; so were the Tories. In retrospect—if Britain was wrong—what about America in the Lebanon? Anyway has not the international situation improved since Russia realized that there was a bite behind the bark? Broadly the international sphere is more settled than at any other time since the war. It may not be peace but at least it is a cold war armistice. Labor could not get that.

And what of the vote? We may be perfectly certain that 40 per cent will vote socialist regardless of program or argument. Father does, grandfather did or some other similar argument will ensure this—and for exactly the same reasons another 40 per cent will vote Conservative. Of the remaining 20 per cent possibly six per cent will vote Liberal, the solid diarch core of a once proud party, and the remaining 14 per cent will decide who is going to govern Britain until the end of 1964.

Sticking myself right out on a limb my tip is that most of those 14 per cent will vote for the status quo. Things are stable. There is no argument about the national health service or social security. That is here to stay. The 14 per cent have had quite enough of nationalization; they are not anxious to experiment. Something like 2,000,000 more people have houses to live in than when the socialists went out of office, pay has gone up, hours have gone down, pensions are up, trade is good, savings are up and mortgages are not hard to come by. Millions of small investors have become interested in the stock exchange through unit trusts.

The social change in Britain is almost complete. The traditional working class has become middle class, the upper class has been downgraded by taxation to middle class, there is a tenuous and ineffectual aristocracy. The Conservative policy of today would have been regarded as extreme by the socialists of 60 years ago. The Liberals, traditional political representatives of the middle class, have been squashed between the upper and nether millstones of working class ascendancy and upper class descent. It has almost ceased to be popular to be an intellectual socialist.

Broadly Labor and Liberal alike have no policy except a rebash of out-moded ideas, but the Conservatives have achieved something. There is no valid reason for change; so even though it will create an all-time record to have the same party returned three times running it looks as though it is as certain as these can be.

The Packsack

OF GREGORY CLARK

THE vote of a professional man among my acquaintances has given birth to ten children, all beautiful, alive, and is now expecting her eleventh. Since the fashionable thing has been to have one, and adopt another for a companion for it; or have at most three, I was interested to have a chat with her in the supermarket showing a vastly heaped shopping wagon, provisions for her boundless family.

"They tell me a new one is on the horizon," I said.

"Yes," she said, a sturdy, bright-eyed woman in her late thirties. "And why not? I realize that many of my friends are aghast at the size of my family. They don't know how I manage to look after them all. Well, it's a curious thing, probably born out by biology, that the more of them there are, the less looking after they need. Indeed, my friends who have only one are exhausted with its care. Those with two are pretty bad; but not as bad as with the one. Those with three find far less trouble than those with two. And so on. A small child has far more sense than it is usually credited with. When there is a household, they seem instinctively to co-operate."

She studied me shrewdly for a moment.

"Look," she said. "You write stories. You take pleasure in creating a story. You must know how poets feel when they create a really great thing. Well, when I discovered I could give life to these beautiful little creatures, I felt the way poets must feel."

Motherhood is the basic creative art.

Political Insurance

Underwritten Integrity

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

A HIGHLY original idea has come out of the mayoralty race in Calgary, where the integrity of some city officials has recently been the subject of a public inquiry.

One of the candidates for mayor has posted a $100,000 bond at the city hall to "guarantee integrity in office" if he is elected. He hopes that other candidates will do likewise.

Thus the good citizens of Calgary would be insured up to $100,000 from the loss of money or property by the mayor "through theft, embezzlement, forgery, misappropriation, wrongful abstraction, wilful misapplication."

With the Classics

It is not while beauty and youth are thine own,
And thy cheeks unprofaned by a tear

That the fervour and faith of a soul can be known,
To which time will but make thee more dear;
No, the heart that has truly loved never forgets,
But as truly loves on to the close,
As the sun-flower turns on her god, when he sets,
The same look which she turned when he rose.

Tops All but One

As a long-time admirer of Trans-Canada Air Lines and of the superb service they provide, I was pleased to read your editorial in the Sept. 16 issue in which you comment on the proposed change of name to Air Canada. I believe it is time the name was changed to bring it into line with the international stature the airline has earned. However, you did imply that at some future date, Air Canada might grow sufficiently to warrant an even more prominent place among the air lines of the world. May I point out that an announcement has just been made by Pan-American Airlines which shows PAA carries more passengers over its international routes than any other airline in the world. It points out too, that in second place among world carriers on international routes stands Trans-Canada Air Lines, a fact I'm sure all Canadians may be proud of.

Other domestic carriers in the United States transport more passengers than does TCA, but internationally, Canada's own air line is in second place. Surely then it is time to change the name to Air Canada.

Hospitals in the Red

Is it true that the hospitals of B.C. are being deliberately deprived of the $27,000,000 which the Dominion government paid to the provincial government some weeks ago?

Is it true that all the hospitals in B.C. are, to use a slang expression, in the red?

City Hall Alternative

Since plans for an over-windowed city hall, with expensive blind, drape and window cleaning demands has been discarded—let us take a fresh, appraising look at the old market building.

To support the great weight of the long roof trusses, the walls were strongly made of solid brick and cut granite. To make a sensible city hall, it is only necessary to remove the aging roof and tear out the partitions and floors, and then build within the solid brick walls a new city hall to required plan.

When the present city hall is sold it will draw new life to that part of Douglas Street and provide funds to add new stories to the rebuilt city hall as required.

The reasonable cost of this city hall, designed by city staff and built by Victoria contractors, would make it easier to concentrate on something more important to Greater Victoria, a civic auditorium.

Squid Bait Best Way To Hook Sea Serpent

NANTUCKET, Mass. (UPI)—Want to catch a real live sea serpent? Try a meat hook baited with squid.

That's the belief of Dr. Torben Wolff, curator of the zoological museum at University of Copenhagen, who believes he knows where one can be found.

He believes it may well be caught off the coast of Peru since that area abounds in unusual sea life. He estimates that the first catch may be from 60 to 180 feet long and will be taken with a large hook baited with squid.

The quarry should be quite near the surface since such creatures require large amounts of food, unavailable in extremely deep waters. Wolff backed his sea serpent theories at the American Academy of Arts and Sciences meeting here yesterday.

He reported that Dr. Anton Brunn also of University of Copenhagen, netted a six foot eel larva west of Capetown, South Africa. It would not be hard to see, he said, how a 60 to 180 foot monster could evolve from such a large larva.

B.C. Government 'Infringes' On Road Work, Firms Claim

Canadian Construction Association this week charged the provincial government built, or maintained 364 miles of public highway by the use of its own day labor last year and only gave 186 miles of highway construction to private firms.

"This industry is most concerned over the tendency... to increase the province's construction facilities to the point where it is infringing upon the operations of contractors" the 94-member association said in a brief to the cabinet.

"We feel such a procedure is not in the public interest since competition between contractors is to the taxpayers' benefit from a standpoint of both cost and efficiency."

Association vice-president Jack M. Soules of Ontario said that Premier Bennett argued that only $3,000,000 worth of work had been done by government forces.

He said that Premier Bennett indicated the government is now considering calling tenders on a competitive basis. "Roadbuilders are very encouraged by this," Mr. Soules said.

Association president Eric Harrington maintained the federal government should pay 50 per cent of the total cost of resource access roads built to provide winter work. It now pays 50 per cent of labor costs, but this is sometimes only 20 per cent of the total cost of a road, he said.

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Robert F. H. Croft, a Kitchener dentist, Thursday was fined $17,500 and costs or 11 months in jail after pleading guilty to 11 charges of income tax evasion involving $58,197.

He was given a week to pay. J. E. Howard, an investigator for the Kitchener income tax office, said the dentist suppressed earnings of $122,482 during the 11-year period from 1945 to 1955.

Mr. Howard said his investigations disclosed the doctor kept several sets of books and 1,300 alterations were made in his books. G. H. Lockheed, counsel for Dr. Croft, said the $58,197 owing the department of national revenue has been paid plus a "round figure" approximating the accumulated interest.

It doesn't look like much, but a mechanical monster called a Zamboni ice-resurfacer is carving out a new deal for city skating and hockey enthusiasts at Memorial Arena.

The $10,000 wonder with the tongue-twisting name is going to make it possible to squeeze about 400 hours more ice time into the arena's jammed seven-month winter schedule.

Arena manager Joe Dukowski, obviously happy at getting the machine he has been drumming for for years, explained it this way:

The machine doesn't make ice, it resurfaces it. In 12 minutes it shaves it, waters it and picks up the surplus snow, doing a job that in the past has taken two hours, and doing it better at that.

This is going to have a far-reaching effect on the ever-crowded conditions at the arena. With the extra time saved, hockey teams, figure-skating clubs and public skaters get that much more time on ice.

One of the organizations to benefit most will be the Greater Victoria Minor Hockey Association, which will now be able to get all its time after school hours instead of between 7 and 9 a.m.

The machine was put to its first demonstration test yesterday as arena workers began putting in ice in preparation for another season. Public skating begins today between 4 and 6 p.m. and 8:30 and 10:30 p.m.

O'Keefe's Odd-Man Play Defeats Mercurys, 18-11

NEW WESTMINSTER — A deadly over-the-shoulder backhand shot that made Jack Barclay the payoff man on New Westminster O'Keefe's odd-man play during the Inter-City Lacrosse League season played havoc with Peterborough Mercurys last night.

With Barclay firing six goals, five of them on the odd-man play, New Westminster moved a step closer to a second successive Canadian senior championship by trouncing Peterborough, 18-11, Thursday at Queen's Park Arena.

And, unless Peterborough can find some way of containing Barclay and O'Keefe's odd-man play, something other clubs have been unable to do, the best-of-seven series will be all over Monday night.

Last night's beating, coupled with Tuesday's 12-5 setback, put Peterborough on the short end of a 2-0 game margin. Even Peterborough will admit that the westerner's odd-man play has been killing them.

EVERY TIME

Peterborough took eight penalties Thursday. New Westminster scored every time, while allowing the Mercurys two power-play goals in four tries.

In the opening game, New Westminster scored five goals on the odd-man play.

O'Keefe's broke last night's game wide open in the first quarter after Peterborough had grabbed a 2-0 lead in the opening eight minutes.

With penalties paving the way for the first three, O'Keefe's exploded for six goals in two minutes and 46 seconds. Barclay started things with odd-man goals at 8:45 and 9:12 and was quickly followed by Don Sepka, Ken Oddy, Bill Jobb and Oddy again.

Peterborough's Roy Wood scored at 12:00, 29 seconds after Oddy's second, but Barclay was back with his third odd-man goal of the quarter with three seconds remaining to give O'Keefe's an insurmountable 7-3 lead.

O'Keefe's led 10-5 at the half and 14-8 after three quarters.

Bobby Allan, eastern scoring champion who finally shook loose from the tight-checking of Jack Byford who held him scoreless in the first game, carried Peterborough in the third quarter. Allan scored two goals but Jack Bionda matched this effort for New Westminster.

The Bionda-Allan scoring duel that had been expected in this series was evident last night. Bionda scored four times and added as many assists while Allan had those two third-quarter goals and three assists.

Bionda had picked up seven points in the opening game, giving him 15 for the two games. He did most of his damage in the second half last night, scoring three of his four goals.

Other high scorers for New Westminster were burly defenceman Don Sepka with three goals and Oddy with two. Singles went to Jobb, Ivan Stewart and Cliff Speka who also earned four assists.

Bobby Curtis paced Peterborough with four goals while Allan and Wood each had two. Flori Tomchishen, Frank Farley and Carl Brioux scored once.

Curtis scored three of his goals in the final quarter as his club rallied briefly to close the gap to 15-11. But, Bionda, Barclay and Cliff Sepka matched these for New Westminster to finish the scoring.

Third game goes Saturday at New Westminster with the fourth scheduled Monday.

DON CHUPKA ... Cougar again

Marcel Braves' Fan; Cougars May Wait

By JIM TANG

Victoria Cougars, who appear to have a reasonable wealth of material from which to pick a club this season, may yet wind up with a problem in goal.

Up until recently, the Cougars needed three fingers to count their possible keepers. There was Marcel Pelletier, who played here last season; and Lucien Dechene, one of the Western Hockey League's all-time greats who played last season in Saskatoon, and Reno Zanier, who guarded New Westminster's nets last season.

Now, there is only Zanier for certain.

Dechene, 34, and a veteran of 11 professional seasons, wants to stay in Quebec this season and will likely get his wish. Pelletier will probably show up but at the moment has to be listed in the doubtful category.

"I've had correspondence with him," manager-coach Hal Laycoe said last night, "and I can't honestly say he is coming. What I think is that he isn't committing himself until that National League race is decided."

BRAVES FAN

Pelletier is an ardent follower of the Milwaukee Braves and it would be no surprise if he is withholding any commitment until he knows for certain whether or not their will be world series baseball in his home town.

In other player news yesterday, Laycoe announced a trade which will bring former Cougar Don Chupka back to Victoria. To get him, Laycoe gave Seattle Americans centre Hugh Barlow but got a bit of cash, too.

Chupka, who will help fill the need for leftwingers, developed into a steady hockey player after being traded to Seattle in the deal which brought Ed Dorohoy temporarily back to Victoria. Chupka scored 24 goals, more than half of them, against Victoria, and made 33 assists in the 1957-58 season.

Last season, he wound up with 26 goals and 35 assists but the Cougars kept him pretty well under control. By comparison, Barlow was 28-34 at New Westminster but slumped badly in the last half of the season. In the 1957-58 season, Barlow's record was 22-28.

The deal is, of course, cancelled if either player refuses to report. There have been rumors that Barlow is desirous of staying on the Mainland and, perhaps, play for Vancouver Canucks.

"I'm quite sure he'll report," Laycoe stated. "He's never told me he wouldn't play if he couldn't remain in the Vancouver area."

In other player news yesterday, Vancouver owner Coley Hall made another move to make a deal with the Cougars. He offered to trade Hugh Currie, 34-year-old defenceman for Max McNab, 35-year-old centre, and Gordie Fashaway, 33-year-old leftwinger who is the all-time WHL leader in goals scored with 344 from 585 league games, an average of close to 40 a season.

Earlier, Hall had offered Currie for McNab and Barlow but with Barlow traded to Seattle, switched to Fashaway. Laycoe's reaction was more amusement than anything else.

"A fair trade, I'd say, would be McNab for Currie. McNab will put another $25,000 worth of fans in Vancouver Forum," he said.

With training camp due to open next Monday, Laycoe had heard from only George Ford, presumes that other players expected will arrive on schedule. Ford has asked if he could be a few days late. He is in Toronto, doesn't seem ready to leave for a few days and plans to drive out.

"I'll be wiring him in the morning telling him he had better get on his horse pronto," Laycoe said.

There was also some doubt about Elliott Chorley, the chunky rightwinger who played last season for Saskatoon. Chorley wants to play in Winnipeg this year but Laycoe stated he believed Chorley would wind up here.

So, until Monday, Laycoe won't know just how many players he will have on hand.

Cougars' Sale OK'd

Jim Piggott, the Saskatoon contractor who operated the Saskatoon franchise in the Western Hockey League last season, yesterday officially became the new owner of the Victoria Cougars.

Directors of the WHL, as expected, gave unanimous endorsement of the sale of the Victoria club to Piggott at a special meeting held in the Empress Hotel.

Piggott was represented at the meeting by Frank Boucher, who was his manager-coach at Saskatoon and who "is still with me in an advisory capacity."

Boucher, who will have no official connection with the Cougars, spent yesterday with Hal Laycoe, who will carry on as manager-coach, straightening out details of the transaction which saw the community-owned club sold to Piggott for $25,000.

Giants Pound Braves To Pad Their Lead

San Francisco Giants, awakening from a hitting slump, pounded six Milwaukee pitchers for 14 hits Thursday and a stunning 13-6 victory that boosted their league lead to two full games.

The Los Angeles Dodgers remained two games out of Sanford, winning his 15th game of the year, was battered freely and gave up nine hits and five runs before he was lifted after seven innings.

LEO DUROCHER ... back in harness?

Leo Keeps Lip Zipped

Durocher Quits TV Post; Rumored for Indian Job

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Leo Durocher Thursday quit his $65,000-a-year job with NBC TV to return to baseball as a manager, possibly with Cleveland Indians.

Durocher, reached as he was about to board a jetliner for Pittsburgh, was reluctant to discuss a report that he was going back to the game where he piloted Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants to championship years.

"Yes, it's true that I have notified NBC that I was not resigning my contract which expires Oct. 1 but I have never told anyone that I was going back to baseball. I guess they were all right in assuming that.

"But I can't say anything because I'm in the midst of negotiation."

A reporter pressed him: "Is it baseball?"

"Yes," answered Durocher. "It's baseball." "Is it the Cleveland Indians?" asked the reporter.

"I can't say anything about that," he answered.

At Baton Rouge, La., sports director Tom Gallery of NBC said Durocher will leave the network at the end of the year.

Durocher has been a commentator on NBC's Game of the Week for the last two years.

Reports recently have had Durocher in line for manager of the New York Yankees, Milwaukee Braves or Chicago White Sox.

New York manager Casey Stengel has been rumored as being ready for retirement, and Milwaukee manager Fred Haney said earlier this year he would not pilot the Braves next season. The reports of the Chicago White Sox manager's job being opened died when Chicago opened a big lead in the American League race and seem certain to win their first flag in 40 years.

APPROACHED BY INDIANS

A source close to Durocher at NBC told a reporter that Indians general manager Frank Lane had approached Durocher six weeks ago to get him to take over the club in the American League stretch drive with Chicago White Sox.

"Leo told Lane then that he couldn't break his contract with NBC but that he was interested in the job," the source added.

Accenting the Indians' report was Lane's blast at Indian manager Joe Gordon that only a miracle—winning the pennant—could get Gordon the job in 1960.

The second-place Indians are trailing the league-leading Chicago White Sox by 5½ games and only the most genuine of miracles could overhaul that lead at this stage of the race.

Full Weekend Soccer Slate

Five teams will make their initial starts of the season this weekend as the Victoria and District Soccer League's McGavin Cup competition swings into high gear with four second-round proper games on tap.

One game is scheduled for Saturday while three more follow Sunday. Saturday's game at McDonald Park matches a young Victoria West team against Kickers, winner of a first-round game against Gorge Hotel last weekend.

Heaneys and Navy, both untested this season, provide the feature of Sunday's schedule. The clubs meet at Colville Park. Other games will see Evcoes, a new entry this season, playing Canadian Scottish at Heywood Park and Ladysmith tackling Brodies Bakery at Reynolds Road Park.

Both Scottish and Brodies played impressively last week in winning first-round games. Ladysmith is another club that has yet to play this season.

All games will start at 2:30 p.m.

Winners of the four weekend games will advance to quarter final play, Saturday, Sept. 26, and Sunday, Sept. 27. Final is tentatively scheduled for Nov. 11.

Casey Concedes

Kilburn Chapman's Assistant

VANCOUVER (CP)—Colin Kilburn, who has been general manager, coach and player in two leagues since 1957, has been signed as assistant coach of the Vancouver Canucks' Western Hockey League club.

General manager Coley Hall said an assistant for coach Art Chapman has been under advisement for several years.

Kilburn was purchased from Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League in June. He started the 1957-58 season as general manager, coach and player for Victoria Cougars of the WHL. He lost all positions about the middle of the season and was shipped to the WHL Edmonton Flyers. He moved to Springfield the next season.

Those August Tyees Were Some Salmon!

Everyone winning a tyee crest in The Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest last month has a salmon he can boast about for some time.

Smallest tyee to qualify for one of the 25 monthly crests weighed 46½ pounds. There were 13 tyees entered of more than 50 pounds, topped by the 63-pounder caught in Nahmint Bay by Ed Startup of Port Alberni. This one is likely to win the tyee King Fisherman Trophy this year.

Seven of the 50-pounders came from the tyee pool at Campbell River, five from Nahmint Bay and one from Como Bay. Nahmint accounted for 11 of the 26 (a 25th-place meant an extra crest) crests to be given out for last month in the tyee division of the contest. Two more were caught in the Alberni Canal at Port Alberni, eight were taken in Campbell River waters, four in Comox Bay and one off Little River.

The Nahmint area also accounted for one of the two largest trout entered last month, a 5½-pounder taken from Nahmint Lake by V. C. Dawson of Brentwood. Mrs. B. Margerish of 1308 Hastings tied Dawson with a fish taken from Upper Campbell Lake.

Winning trout crests last month was not a difficult matter, all trout of more than one pound, six ounces making the grade.

And it was even easier in the small-mouth black bass division, where fish of 17 ounces or more won crests and only one fish of more than four pounds was taken.

However, there were several bigger fish in both the trout and bass divisions entered by anglers who had previously won crests in those divisions. Anglers may win only one crest in each contest division in one year, and there is a special $25 award for the first angler to win five different crests in one year.

Milkmen Lose To Garagemen In Playdowns

Duncan Garage are champions of the Independent Softball League after defeating Northwesterners, 8-3, in the deciding game of a best-of-three final that concluded last week.

The new champions opened the series with a 9-4 win but were forced to play a third game when Northwesterners won the second game, 15-10.

Northwesterners entered the final by winning the replay of the game with Dormans, 16-11, and then beating the same club, 10-6, in the deciding game.

Duncan will be presented with the Howard Curling Trophy at the league dance at White Eagle Hall Sept. 25.

Overtime Goals Win For Royals

WINNIPEG (CP)—New Westminster Royals scored two goals in overtime Thursday night to defeat Winnipeg Army, Navy and Air Force Scottish 5-3 in a sudden-death Western Canada soccer final. Royals now will meet Montreal Alouettes at Toronto Sunday in the Canadian final.

Inside right Gogie Stewart scored what proved to be the winner at eight minutes of the half-hour overtime session when he blistered a shot past goalkeeper John Gawryluk after taking a pass from Ed Bak.

Elements Can't Faze Smooth Charlie Coe

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Charlie Coe, the slim, smooth shotmaker from Oklahoma City, conquered blinding fog, icy rain and two opponents Thursday on the way toward his second straight U.S. amateur golf championship.

The 35-year-old old broker glided into today's semi-final along with Gene Andrews, 46, Whittier, Calif.; Dudley Wyson, 20, McKinney, Tex., and Jack Nicklaus, 19, Columbus, Ohio.

Coe plays Wyson and Andrews meets Nicklaus in 36-hole matches over the 7,010-yard par-71 Broadmoor course.

Coe, five up after winning four successive holes from No. 8 through No. 11, needed all

Plenty of horses and more than enough riders to go around are promised for the annual race meeting at Sandown Park, which starts tomorrow at 1.45 and concludes on Monday, Oct. 12.

A track spokesman said yesterday that more than 200 thoroughbreds and at least 16 riders will be on hand for the 104 races which will be held during the 14 days of racing, stretched over more than three weeks.

Racing is scheduled from Wednesday through Saturday for the next three weeks with no action Mondays and Tuesdays, winds up on Thanksgiving Day. Eight races will be held on each of the four Saturdays and on closing day, seven on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays.

Starting time on Saturdays and closing day will be at 1.45. First post time for next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be 2.30 but with daylight saving time ending, it's expected that this will be moved up for the last two weeks.

Feature race tomorrow is the Times Handicap, to be run over six furlongs.

Starting field will not be known until this morning but it is expected to include Wherever-UR, a five-year-old mare owned and trained by Jim Halkett; Penworth, a three-year-old gelding owned and trained by Cy Perkins; Minnie Mac, four-year-old filly owned and trained by Norman McDonald; Bro. Chas, a seven-year-old grey gelding owned by Dave Diamond and trained by ex-rider Bunny Johnson, and Siwash Grace, a three-year-old filly likely to set a fast pace, owned and trained by Gordon Gilder.

Most of the other races will be over the sprint distance of six furlongs and, as in the past, there will be quinnella betting on the second and last races.

Among the thoroughbreds on hand are four who won three races each last year—Indian Springs, Mount Baker, New Feature and Sir Busher. Not here are Silent Dawn, which won four in a row in 1958, and Desert Fire, who topped the handicap division with two wins in three feature races.

Indian Springs, it may be remembered, wound up with three in a row and was in the money in all six starts to rank as the most consistent horse of last year's meet. Don Garry's Mount Baker was right alongside with three wins and a place finish in four starts.

SHARED HONORS

Also returning this year are Charlie Ulrich, who shared riding honors last year with Jack Arterburn by riding 15 winners, and Jim Broomfield, who topped riders this year at Vancouver with Ulrich as runner-up. Broomfield had 11 winners and 36 of 73 mounts in the first three last year.

Bobby Cormack, who was a stand-out rider last year with 12 winners, many of them longshots, 11 place and 18 show horses, is also riding again. So are Joe Webster, 11 winners last year; Ronnie Williams, who had seven before he left, Ron Carriere and Heidi Nishi, one of the few Japanese riders about.

Among the other riders listed by track officials are veteran Jimmy Sivewright, Delmar Jones, Leroy Rodriguez, Alvin Sherman, Lewis Gonzales, Wesley Jones and apprentice-riders Keith Shepherd, Jimmy McLeod and Pete Clark.

Lennie Knowles, who rode here last year, was injured recently but may be able to ride by mid-week. Also among the possibles is Lenny Shields, who was the leading rider on the Prairie circuit this year.

More Coho Showing All Around Island

Anglers have almost seen the last of the spawning springs but there is still plenty of time for some lively action with coho salmon. In fact, the silver season is not yet fully under way and the next month should provide many an interesting moment.

Entries being made in the Daily Colonist King Fisherman Contest are daily showing a larger percentage of coho, and most of them are more than eight pounds, ranging up to 15 and averaging close to 10.

Qualicum Beach reports some excellent fishing with Strip-Teasers outfitting the buchtail fly. Big silvers are also being caught in Brown's Bay and off Little River.

In south Island waters, there has been some fairish coho fishing off Otter Point with Strip-Teasers and Minnow-Teasers the favored lures. Coho are also being taken off Albert Head and close to Victoria and a good percentage of Saanich Inlet salmon are also coho. Mill Bay has been a good area and it shouldn't be long before the already-overdue Cowichan Bay run shows up.

BRUCE BAXTER

New Quarterback for Navy

Victoria Navy will fire with a brand-new quarterback, a returning first-string halfback and a beefed-up defence line in a vital land battle here Saturday in the new Pacific Coast Intermediate Canadian Football Conference.

The sailors will launch their attack at 2 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park against Vancouver Wildcats, the power-laden club that whipped Navy,

36-0, in a season-opener in Vancouver last weekend.

who resigned as Navy juvenile

Manager Don Hamilton says

Cordick "has a nice handoff, a dandy pass, good timing and should fit in fine with our backs, especially Bruce Baxter, who did so well last week."

Baxter and Cordick used to be teammates on several Navy

First-string halfback Red

Larsen, unable to play in the opener, returns to the back

Padre Ivan Edwards, the coach, is spending much of the

fensive line, weakest link

before the Windcats.

Meanwhile, Victoria Drakes, easy 39-13 winners over Surrey Rams here, go to Surrey's dirt field Sunday for a "revenge" game.

Coach-quarterback Jack Patrick plans no changes while the Rams will have ace passer

Chuck Weeks ready. They want revenge for the Drakes' 31-0 win in their only previous appearance in Surrey —

an exhibition game Drakes won a year ago with only 14 men.

Second Round Sunday For Uplands Golfers

Second round of match play for the Uplands Golf Club championship will be played Sunday.

The draw follows:

8:00 a.m. — D. Smith vs. H. Forde;

J. Gillan vs. P. Briggs;

8:08 — D. Anderson vs. W. Loney; W.

Kane vs. R. Caddell;

8:16 — R. Peris vs. A. Caddell; J.

Irving vs. C. Abbott;

8:24 — E. MacKenzie vs. S. James; B.

Thirwell vs. C. Hemm;

8:32 — E. Hubberton vs. T. Clements;

R. Hunt vs. C. Tyrrell;

8:40 — J. Purinton vs. J. Calvert; J.

Osborne vs. J. Reide;

8:48 — W. Wakeham vs. J. Hadfield; A.

Reid vs. W. Rutherford;

8:56 — P. Kilham vs. M. Coworth; G.

Brooks vs. W. Lee;

9:04 — F. Scroggs vs. P. Ranson; J.

Briggs vs. D. Humphries.

Murder Trial Ends Today In Nanaimo

NANAIMO—The trial of a Port Alberni woman for the murder of a young married woman will end today.

Mrs. Rachel Silvester is charged with the murder of Mrs. Joan Venne, 22, who died at Port Alberni June 27.

The Crown has alleged Mrs. Venne died following an abortion performed by Mrs. Silvester and another woman, Mrs. Ross Trapp of Port Alberni, who will stand trial on a similar charge next week.

Mr. Justice Harry Sullivan announced that the case will finish this afternoon following consultation with Crown and defence counsels yesterday. The Crown closed its case yesterday after calling 10 witnesses.

One of them, Mrs. Mary Finnerty who was a neighbor of the dead woman in Port Alberni, burst into sobs as she described the scene in a bedroom where Mrs. Venne's body was examined by a Port Alberni doctor following the alleged operation.

Mrs. Finnerty said she went to Mrs. Venne's house June 27 when she saw a police car draw up outside. She went into a bedroom.

Joannie (Mrs. Venne) was lying on the bed and Dr. De Vito was there," she told the court. "Dr. De Vito just shook his head. Joannie's face was all bloated and spotty."

"The doctor asked me if I knew Joan was pregnant and I said 'Yes,'" Mrs. Finnerty said.

A bicycle pump which was produced in court as an exhibit is alleged by the Crown to have been used in the alleged abortion.

Crash Hurts Four

CAMPBELL RIVER—Four young Campbell River men escaped with head injuries and shock in a road accident last night which completely wrecked their car.

Alan McPherson, Armour Sambrook, Jr., Kenneth Birch and Victor Graham were rushed to Campbell River Hospital following the accident. Graham was allowed to leave following treatment. The other three men were admitted.

The car, driven by McPherson, was moving south along the Island Highway when it went out of control just past the Campbell River Bridge.

The sedan grazed a large power pole, demolished a public works road direction sign and ended in a ditch. The accident happened near the junction with the Campbell River Road.

Possession Denied

CHEMAINUS—Richard Harrington Douglas pleaded not guilty in court here yesterday to a charge of being in possession of stolen property. He will stand trial here next Thursday.

The charge was laid by police two weeks ago when they arrested Douglas during an investigation of the theft of 100 dozen bottles of eastern beer from the E & N Railway sheds here late last month.

Police had recovered half the beer before the arrest was made.

Nanaimo Polio Case Brought to Victoria

NANAIMO—Polio victim Gale Roberts, 3, of Dufferin Crescent, Nanaimo, has been transferred to Victoria Jubilee Hospital. She was admitted to Nanaimo General Hospital with her nine-year-old brother this week.

Underwater Denizen Dies

Holding the weird-looking wolffish he shot underwater while skin diving yesterday off Brothie Ledge is Steve Boyd, 17, of 722 Kings Road. The wolffish is fairly common in these local waters, experts say, but the five-foot length of Boyd's catch is considered above average. Hunting at a depth of 60 feet, Boyd used only one shot with his spear gun to hit the slender target.—(Colonist photo.)

Hospital Council Meets in Duncan

DUNCAN—The semi-annual meeting of the Vancouver Island Regional Hospital Council begins here today with a panel and group discussion after a speech by assistant deputy health minister L. F. Detweiler on accreditation.

Other speakers during the two-day event will be Mrs. Ivan Dobbins of Duncan, on the duties of trustees; T. J. Martin of Campbell River, on medical staff organization; William Daddman of Alert Bay, on labor relations, unemployment insurance and superannuation, and Sister Superior Mary Ann Celesta of Victoria's St. Joseph's Hospital will speak about hospital budgeting.

Discussions will remain separate Friday between trustees and hospital administrators. On Saturday discussions will mainly be in small groups on other phases of hospital work. Dr. E. N. Boettcher, St. Joseph's medical director, will be guest speaker at the luncheon meeting.

The session will close Saturday afternoon with reports from all groups. Recommendations will be forwarded to next month's British Columbia Hospital Association convention at Vancouver.

Logger Found Not Guilty In Redonda Island Death

VANCOUVER—A 47-year-old logger was acquitted this week of a murder charge laid following the knife slaying of a 28-year-old Indian on Redonda Island, near Campbell River, in April.

Ernest James Keen, a bachelor, was accused of murdering Frank Wilson in a fight early on April 17. Summing up, Mr. Justice T. W. Brown commented that there was no motive for Keen to murder Wilson.

Red Cross Qualicum Rally

Blood Plasma Demand Increasing Each Year

QUALICUM BEACH—The demand for blood plasma is increasing each year as new and improved surgical techniques are adopted, delegates to the annual meeting of Vancouver Island Red Cross branches were warned Tuesday.

The warning came from Donald Cox, hospital insurance commissioner of the provincial health department. Mr. Cox thanked the Red Cross for its blood transfusion facilities, on behalf of the BCCHS.

Canadian Red Cross, with its eight outpost hospitals throughout the province, plays an important part in British Columbia's health facilities, he added.

F. R. Killam, president of the B.C. division of Red Cross, told the 65 delegates from nine of the island's 11 branches that 1959 marks the 50th anniversary of Red Cross in Canada and the 100th anniversary of the International Red Cross Society.

Cowichan Bay Area Closed

COWICHAN BAY—The west end of the bay has been closed to fishermen for the protection of spawning salmon.

The area closed off by the department of fisheries is west of a line drawn from the south end of the CNR wharf to a sign on Skinner Bluff on Tzouhalem Mountain.

Death Ends 30-Year Partnership

CAMPBELL RIVER—The death of a veteran Vancouver fisherman this week wrote "finis" to a strange coincidence.

Capt. Jura Vukic, 57, died this week in a Vancouver hospital from injuries suffered Sept. 1 aboard a boat near Campbell River.

His partner of some 30 years, Capt. John Miacika, 54, who lived only a block away from Capt. Vukic in Vancouver, was drowned off Campbell River Sept. 3.

Both men were born in Yugoslavia and they met in Vancouver in the late 1920s. Some 10 years ago the two men bought the fishpacker Northern Girl and until recently they were part owners of Vancouver's Marble Arch Hotel.

Vukic was injured when his leather jacket caught on a winch cable. He suffered a broken arm and internal injuries.

Miacika was knocked from the deck of his boat when it hit a log. He was swimming strongly but suddenly doubled up before he could be pulled aboard. He failed to respond to resuscitation.

Ring Nipped At Cowichan

COWICHAN LAKE—Police here have "nipped in the bud" a juvenile theft ring.

Yesterday in juvenile court seven youths admitted charges ranging from breaking and entering and theft to being in possession of stolen goods.

They were all part of a group working together, said police, taking small items from stores in the Lake area.

12-MONTH PROBATION

Three of the seven who admitted breaking and entering and theft were placed on 12-month probation with curfews. The four others were given two-month probationary sentences.

Police said the thefts took place last summer but that their investigations had only been completed recently.

Five Escape In Crash At Mill Bay

MILL BAY—Five persons in two cars escaped injury here yesterday when one car rammed into the rear of the other vehicle on the Trans-Canada Highway.

Police are still investigating the accident that took place at 10:30 a.m. when a car driven by John Bailey of Victoria smashed into the rear of one driven by Mrs. Forester Nelson of Shawnigan Lake.

A total of more than $700 damage was done. The accident occurred at the Shawnigan Lake-Mill Bay cutoff just north of here.

Bailey was accompanied by his wife, their infant child and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ernest Robinson of Victoria, owner of the car. Mrs. Nelson was alone.

NORSE NAME

Walruses of the northern seas got their name from the Norsemen, who called them hvalross or "whale horse."

News in Brief

CHANTILLY, France—Messali Hadj, leader of the National Algerian Movement (MNA) rivals to the insurgent National Liberation Front (FLN), escaped an attempt on his life near this town north of Paris.

TORONTO—The split between the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers and its Sudbury local widened over the issue of alleged Communist domination of Mine-Mill.

QUEBEC—Premier Paul Sauvé indicated his attitude toward federal grants to Quebec universities is the same as that of his predecessor, Premier Duplessis.

OTTAWA—About 1,700 CBC employees will get pay increases up to seven per cent.

BAGHDAD—Iraq people's court sentenced four army officers to death on charges of participating in an abortive uprising at Mosul last March.

ST. THOMAS, Ont.—Southwestern Ontario's already-battered tobacco crop took another beating from killing frost that left an estimated 20,000,000 pounds blackened in the fields.

EDMONTON—Lands and forests department officers said a small black bear shot northeast of Jasper Park last week probably was the same one that fatally mauled a man during the Labor Day weekend.

VANCOUVER—Fred Martinson of Vancouver, who disappeared after his truck crashed Sunday on the Hope-Princeton Highway, turned up safely here.

Former crew members of HMCS Prince Henry, when she was a landing ship during the Second World War, are planning a reunion Sept. 26 at HMCS Discovery, Vancouver. Information may be obtained from Ronald Sears at EV 3-7936.

Jaycee Senator

Chairman of Victoria Chamber of Commerce's fluoridation committee and past president of the Junior Chamber, Ira Hill has won a Jaycee senatorship, highest award in the organization for meritorious service during the past year. Mr. Hill, who received with the award a life membership in Jaycee International, was also chairman of committee which recommended the improved public facilities at Elk Lake.

Ultra-Convenience

Parking Plan Cited

Devaluation of central business district property in most North American cities can be attributed to the law of physics which states "two solids cannot occupy the same space at the same time."

A man who is considered the dean of community planners in the U.S., Gordon

Whitnall, told the Victoria branch of the Community Planning Association of Canada last night that there is no more evident proof of the law than "the double white line down the middle of the road."

The object which has brought decentralization of business facilities and consequent devaluation of the property in central business districts is the car, the veteran planner said.

He recounted how central business districts developed during a period when the automobile did not exist and such mass transportation systems as tramways and subways delivered and removed the daytime population of the areas.

Communities were a static mass before the advent of the car and have become a fluid mass since then, but the environment has not changed.

Mere provision of off-street parking is not enough to revive "decaying central business districts," the former director of planning for Los Angeles said, the parking must offer "ultra-convenience."

The parking facilities must serve the entire district as a unit and not each business as a unit he continued, or else the district develops more parking space than is needed and spreads businesses too far apart for convenience.

Because different businesses have different peak customer volume periods many businesses can use the same parking facilities.

If each were to provide its own, "the number of lots required for the success of the business would leave no room for the business," he said.

An average business community, he said, requires three

Rates Battle Boiling

OTTAWA (CP)—A running transcontinental battle is developing over the controversial low freight rates on export grain before the royal commission on railways.

The railways served notice before the commission Thursday that they want an exploration of the statutory Crows Nest Pass rates, regarded in the West as politically untouchable since their passage by Parliament in 1925.

Prairie spokesmen immediately bridled and declared the Crows Nest rates are outside the scope of the seven-man commission headed by Hon. C. P. McTaggart of Toronto.

Mr. McTaggart, a former Ontario Supreme Court judge, indicated that a parliamentary pronouncement by Prime Minister Diefenbaker on untouchability of the Crows Nest rates will not affect commission decision.

And commission counsel Gordon Cooper of Halifax let it be known he feels the commission should dig into the disputed rates in its over-all investigation into Canada's big railway problem.

The varying views came out as the commission held a preliminary hearing to determine future procedure and to get views on what specific subjects should be investigated. The hearing continues today.

'Taxless' Aid Asked Again

(By Colonist Staff Reporter)
KELOWNA—The Union of B.C. Municipalities voted yesterday to renew its request to the provincial government to make grants to municipalities in lieu of taxes on provincial land and buildings. A resolution pointed out that the federal government makes such grants and "the provincial government has seen fit to levy school taxes against such grants."

A grant equivalent to taxes on provincial property in Victoria would bring the city more than $250,000 a year it has been calculated.

Slashed from 18 months to three months by Appeal Court here Monday, was jail sentence of Victoria-based sailor Kenneth Duckart, 21.

Duckart was sentenced in juvenile court Aug. 19 for contributing to juvenile delinquency.

A coffee party in Victoria College's new Union Room at 8 p.m. Friday will open the college's evening division program of liberal arts discussion groups.

D. R. Coell, 527 Whiteside, has been awarded his certificate as an accredited appraiser by the Appraisal Institute of Canada.

In the field of appraising for about 10 years, for the past four years he has been instructing in valuation principles for assessment purposes.

Americans Not Fooled Says Ike

WASHINGTON (CP)—President Eisenhower expressed a conviction Thursday that Premier Khrushchev won't "fool" the American people with his sales pitch for Communism.

In a press conference reference to Khrushchev's oratorical ability Eisenhower said that when it came to a comparison between Communism and freedom, "I do not believe that master debaters or great appearances of sincerity or anything else are going to fool the American people long."

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV
... Well, here I am

Nationwide Telecast To Close U.S. Tour

WASHINGTON (AP)—Nikita Khrushchev will make a nationwide telecast before leaving the United States after his talks with President Eisenhower next week at Camp David, Md.

The Soviet premier also will hold a press conference here. On Sept. 25, after his trip to the west coast, Iowa and Pittsburgh, he will go by car to Eisenhower's Camp David retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland, returning the following Sunday.

The final major public appearances are scheduled soon after his return to Washington from Camp David on Sept. 27 at 1:30 p.m.

From 4 to 5 p.m., a full hour, Khrushchev is listed for a press conference to be held at the Soviet Embassy in Washington.

From 6 p.m. to 7 p.m. he is scheduled to deliver an address on NBC-TV network from NBC studios in Washington.

At 10 p.m. his TU-114 airliner is to take off for the return flight to Moscow.

Thousands Just Stare In New York

NEW YORK (CP)—Nikita Khrushchev, perambulating prophet of Communism, came to this capital of capitalism Thursday, renewed his calls for peace and extended a special greeting to "the toilers."

Throngs turned out to see the ebullient Soviet premier, most of them staring silently or talking quietly among themselves. Some cheered and others jeered, and a few yelled "murderer."

COOL WELCOME

For Manhattan, it was a cool welcome devoid of Broadway's tickertape parade, the traditional greeting for honored visitors. Police estimated daytime crowds at about 175,000.

Khrushchev was at his bouncy best through it all, matching wits at a civic luncheon with Mayor Robert Wagner and Henry Cabot Lodge, who is president Eisenhower's personal representative for the Russian's United States tour.

IKE 'GREAT MAN'

Eisenhower, said Khrushchev, is a "great man," and he added:

"I have always esteemed your president and I do so to an even greater degree now. To have invited Khrushchev to the U.S. needed wisdom and will power and understanding of the need to place the relations between our countries on a sounder basis."

Khrushchev won a hearty laugh from the 1,200 guests when, speaking in Russian, he said he surmised there was another reason for his invitation:

"You wanted to see what kind of a man Khrushchev is. Well, here I am."

U.S., Britain Jump Gun On Khrushchev at UN

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United States and Britain Thursday tried to steal Premier Khrushchev's thunder with a challenge to join in a broad program for peace including a new approach to disarmament.

State Secretary Christian Herter and Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd made their proposals in policy speeches to the UN General Assembly. The Soviet premier has announced he will submit a new disarmament plan when he addresses the 82-country assembly today.

In his first appearance at the UN since becoming secretary of state, Herter outlined a program aimed at bringing about constructive changes by peaceful means in disarmament, world politics and economic and social fields.

Lloyd came up with a new three-stage disarmament plan that will go before the 10-power East-West conference in Geneva next year along with Khrushchev's proposals.

The British minister called for a study by experts at conferences on particular problems, to be followed by a gradual cut in nuclear and conventional arms and manpower. The final stage would be comprehensive disarmament by all powers under effective international control.

Khrushchev Startled By Singers

NEW YORK (AP)—An unrehearsed patriotic highlight marked a civic luncheon for Premier Khrushchev at the Commodore Hotel shortly after his arrival in New York.

A small band first played the Soviet national anthem while some 1,200 guests stood in silence and then swung into the first few bars of "The Star Spangled Banner."

A voice rose, unsolicited, in time with the music. Then another and another until the entire group of distinguished Americans were singing the national anthem together.

Khrushchev appeared startled, his eyes darting back and forth, at the impromptu demonstration of patriotism.

No Ticker for Nikita

The visitor won applause at the televised luncheon, but outside the Commodore Hotel where it was held there was grim evidence of hatred of the Russian system.

One anti-Communist organization handed passersby leaflets picturing a bloody hand and stating, "Nikita Khrushchev, thou bloodstained tyrant." A sky-writing aircraft marked a cross in the cloudless sky.

A knot of people broke into a chant: "Khrushchev is a murderer." Demonstrators organized by Hungarian refugee groups carried placards proclaiming "danger, evil men at work," "you can reach for the moon but you can't get America," "welcome his excellency, N. Khrushchev, the murderer," and "Nikie, go to the moon, leave us alone."

At one point a dynamite blast from a construction project boomed out just after the Khrushchev motorcade left the Waldorf-Astoria, where the Russian is staying.

Street crowds, laughing, yelled "they got him, they got him!"

'Capitalist Malfunction' Halts Nikita's Elevator

Parents Charged

Baby Boy Allowed To Starve to Death

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI)—Parents of four children were charged Wednesday with allowing their 17-month-old son to starve to death. Marine Sam Watts Sr. and his wife, Julia Marie, were charged with manslaughter after an autopsy disclosed Darrell Leroy Watts was in an advanced state of malnutrition at his death last month. The couple apparently took good care of their other three children, police said.

Senate 'Reformed'

PRETORIA (Reuters)—Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd has unveiled "reform" proposals for the South African Senate, including a plan to abolish 40 of its 90 seats. He said elected senators would be in proportion to the number of voters in each province, and all minority groups of reasonable size would be represented.

But the Senate would not be allowed to thwart "the will of the people" as expressed in the lower House of Assembly and never would be allowed to become a body which could subject whites to the will of non-whites. Verwoerd did not commit himself on any specific date for proclaiming this Commonwealth country a republic.

He recalled that Labor party groups in Britain on occasion had urged the exclusion of South Africa from the Commonwealth. If Labor won office in Britain, Oct. 8, the prime minister said, it might be in the interests of good relations between the two countries if the union then left the Commonwealth and proclaimed itself a republic.

Fraternity Hazing Fatal to Student

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A University of Southern California student choked to death on a piece of raw meat during a pre-dawn fraternity hazing yesterday, police reported. Dr. Melvin Goldy, summoned to the Kappa Sigma fraternity house, said he had to extract a thick piece of liver from the gullet of Richard Swanson, 21. Swanson, son of a Los Angeles physician, was pronounced dead on arrival at a hospital. Dr. Goldy said the piece was nearly four inches long and nearly an inch thick. Nathan Ruben, ambulance attendant, said he found the youth, dressed in a burlap sack, lying on his stomach in the rear of the fraternity house. He asked the onlookers if Swanson had eaten anything, but they remained silent. "Had I known about the liver," Ruben added, "I might have performed a tracheotomy, an emergency throat-slitting operation and he might have been saved."

Tibet 'Suicide Squads' Do-or-Die Against Reds

NEW DELHI (UPI) — About 6,000 Khampa tribesmen in western Tibet are fighting a do-or-die battle with the Chinese Communist conquerors of their homeland, it was reported yesterday.

The Times of India said tribesmen concentrated in the Kailash-Mansarovar area have formed suicide squads for guerrilla warfare against the Reds.

Stolen-Car Factory on Farm

OTTAWA (UPI) — A big inter-provincial car theft ring stretching from Montreal to Windsor was uncovered by Ottawa police yesterday.

The gang, with headquarters on a farm near Ashton, about 18 miles west of the capital, was described by police as "the slickest ever to operate in eastern Canada."

Police said one man was detained and several arrests were expected soon.

The mastermind of the ring was said to be a "respectable" Ottawa man.

The farm headquarters contained a motor body repair shop which police said was used to dismantle the stolen cars and then re-assemble them so that they could not be recognized.

A big semi-trailer van was used to transport the stolen cars between provinces.

Montreal Detective George Cote said most of the cars were stolen in Montreal and Toronto and sold in Ottawa.

The tip-off to the ring's operations came last Friday when an Ottawa policeman became suspicious of a truck which was later found to contain parts from a 1959 model car.

As Student Dress Improves So Do Marks

"Code of dress" in Greater Victoria high schools has not only eliminated "provocative and unsightly" clothes, but has also raised the marks of some of the students.

"This seems to be the case, although there's no scientific evidence," says John Gough, superintendent of school district 61.

"There must be conformity, rightly or wrongly, to please the majority of the members of the community," he said last night in announcing the continuation of censorship of students' clothing.

Forms are now being mimeographed for distribution to parents, for them to read and then sign, "otherwise the forms might be thrown away on the way home," said Mr. Gough.

By wearing exaggerated clothes, "they're just calling attention to themselves . . . they're show-offs, and showing off certainly isn't desirable," he said.

"They're trying to ape somebody . . . I don't say they act like real hoodlums, but leather jackets, long hair and other extreme clothing are not suitable for school."

Mr. Gough agreed that such girls' clothing as tight skirts and snug sweaters were too provocative.

"It's distracting to the boys. Parents co-operated well last year with teachers in seeing that the dress code was observed," the superintendent said. "And there was a tendency for the marks of the extremely-dressed students to improve with their clothing," he said.

"However, we can't generalize about them . . . there's no scientific evidence."

"But I agree it's conceivable that the bad students—the bad element—are these people whose dress we object to."

Mr. Gough also made the point that the code of dress tended to reduce the competition—especially among girls—concerning clothes, which plagues many parents.

"Mothers have complained to us about this competing," he said.

Here's what the clothing guide will suggest:

ing. Simple, neat hair stylings. Makeup, if any, modest and simple; practical shoes.

Boys: Short haircuts without sideburns; no tightly-fitted or highly-draped trousers or those cut low at the waist. Plain shirts with only the top button undone, if worn without a tie. No leather motorcycle jackets, metal trimmed jackets, or metal-shod boots or shoes.

Woman Dies Men Hurt In Smashup

One woman died and two men were injured when a small car went out of control and rolled over several times on the Sooke Road near Jordan River about 3 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Joan Dulmage, 39, of Nanaimo, driver of the car, died of head injuries at St. Joseph's Hospital about two hours after she was brought in by West Coast ambulance.

MINOR INJURIES

Alexander Caton, 1219 Pandora, passenger, was released from St. Joseph's after he was treated for minor injuries. In satisfactory condition at the same hospital last night was another passenger, John Geddes, who gave his address as the York Hotel. He suffered back injuries in the crash.

Police said a third passenger, Jim Nelson of Jordan River, was uninjured.

The accident occurred on Coal Creek hill 12 miles from Sooke. Colwood RCMP said the car left the road on a curve and rolled over several times before coming to a halt upside down in the middle of the road.

The ambulance crew who rushed the three injured persons in to hospital said that the roof of the small car was caved in and that the chassis was badly smashed.

LYING ON PAVEMENT

They said that prior to their arrival Mrs. Dulmage had been lifted onto a seat taken from the car because gasoline was trickling across the road to where she was lying on the pavement and it was feared the gasoline might catch fire.

Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, was notified last night. He said it was probable that an inquest will be held.

Lower Away Men

How to get seriously injured "casualty" off top of two-storey building is practised here by PPCLI soldiers who have converted Work Point Barracks obstacle course into "national survival" training ground to fill new role of Canadian Army.—(Colonist photo.)

National Survival Course

Saviours, Not Killers New Role for Soldiers

Canadian soldiers taking intensive "national survival" training here in line with the army's new wartime role will soon be as qualified to save a human life as they are to take one.

A Colonist reporter-photographer team which toured the Work Point Barracks training ground of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and allied units yesterday watched troops training as diligently to become saviours as they ever have to become killers.

SMOKING RIFLE

When the modern Canadian soldier is not filling his traditional role behind the smoking barrel of a modern automatic rifle he can be seen performing such seemingly incongruous tasks as administering plasma to a civilian "casualty," detecting radiation, fighting a forest fire or even directing traffic.

But incongruous tasks these are not.

VERY ESSENCE

In the words of Maj. Robert F. Bruce, second in command of the PPCLI here, they are the very essence of the "national survival" duties imposed upon the army a few months ago.

"Directing traffic may seem a peculiar task for a fighting man," Maj. Bruce said, "but the national survival role is designed to enable the nation to recover and fight back following a nuclear attack, and streams of uncontrolled civilian traffic around a target area would hamper recovery."

TOP INSTRUCTORS

To train soldiers to fulfill their new duties as soon as possible the army is utilizing top instructors regardless of their military status.

Traffic control knowledge is being imparted by RCMP personnel who have experience in that field, and yesterday a member of the Vancouver fire department was here on loan to give lectures on casualty removals from damaged buildings.

NEW PROGRAM

The new program of training is nowhere more evident at Work Point than on the ground usually occupied by the typical military obstacle course.

Where once they learned to ford a stream and keep their powder dry, they are now learning to ford a stream and keep their stretcher patient dry.

And where once they learned how to use a bayonet they are now learning to use a needle and a plasma bottle.

But in spite of all this the army's answer to the question, "Is the Canadian soldier becoming a purely defensive soldier?" is a ringing "no."

First major test of the Princess Pats' new skills will come next week when they will climb aboard more than 100 army transports for a four-day Vancouver Island exercise which will culminate Thursday with their "re-entry" into an "atom-bombed" Victoria.

Member To Back Subsidy

Victoria MP A. DeB. McPhillips yesterday said he would support a subsidized ferry service for Victoria "if a subsidy is needed to keep the Victoria-Vancouver service going."

"It is our basic constitutional right to have steamship connection with trans-continental railways, but as far as I know the CPR has not asked for a subsidy," Mr. McPhillips said.

CANADA SHOULD PAY

"But, if a subsidy would accomplish continuation of the service the government of Canada should pay for it," he said. He pointed out a subsidy here would be small when compared to that paid to maintain service to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Mr. McPhillips stressed that any subsidy should not be a temporary measure, just until the provincial government ferries are in operation.

DUCKING PROBLEM

"That would be ducking the problem," he said.

He said the provincial government ferries which are scheduled to operate between Sidney and Tsawwassen "will not serve the port of Victoria and primarily their purpose will be to serve the notoring public and the truckers, but not the individual travellers."

"We would be bowing out of our constitutional rights if we didn't insist on boat service to Victoria harbor," Mr. McPhillips said.

So Says Gruber

Who Achieved Suez Peace? —Beethoven

Who brought about the recent Suez cease-fire? The United Nations, you say? Not so, says Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

It was Beethoven!

"Beethoven more than any of the UN delegates ended the Suez war," the young maestro told Oak Bay Kiwanis Club last night.

FORCE FOR PEACE

Claim was made as an illustration of Mr. Gruber's theme that music in general (and the Victoria Symphony in particular) deserves everyone's support because it is the world's greatest single force for peace.

"An American and a Russian can sit side by side at a concert and there is no conflict between them . . . only peace," he said.

"What they (musicians and composers) have to say has the power to bring people together."

TWO YEARS AGO

To explain his claim about Beethoven and the Suez, Mr. Gruber referred back to the time approximately two years ago when the dispute was at its most bitter stage—and seemingly far away from settlement.

One night during that period the New York Philharmonic put on a special concert for the UN delegates, as it does every year, said Mr. Gruber.

"They performed Beethoven's Ninth Symphony."

NO COINCIDENCE

"And the next morning," he said, "it was no coincidence that their differences had evaporated and a cease-fire was ordered."

The whole of the conductor's short, pithy address was frankly a plea for financial support for the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

"I ask for your support because a symphony orchestra is an out-and-out economic asset even though it is always a deficit-budget operation," he said.

$85,000 A YEAR

This is so, he explained, because the symphony needs $85,000 a year to operate "and this is placed in active circulation. It would be dormant if it were not for us."

Work is also provided for 70 persons, he said, and the orchestra also requires the regular services of a large number of city businesses.

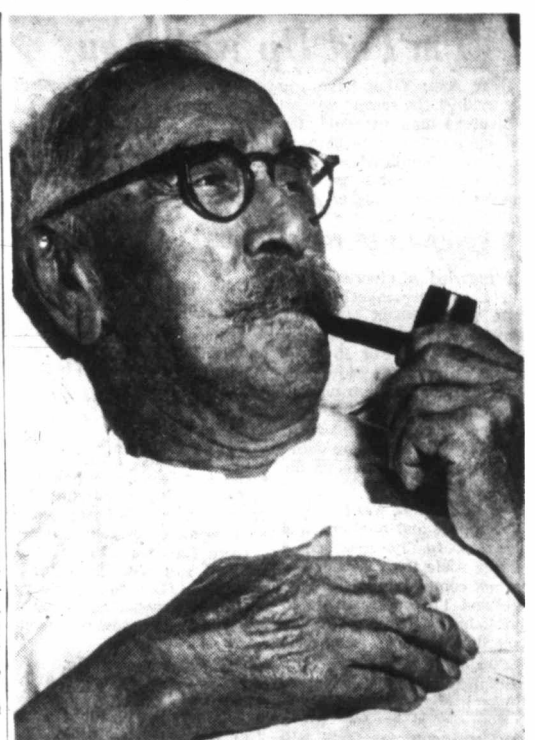

But the best reason of all

$4,000,000 Dredge Bids Under Review

Big Contract Not Gone Victoria Yards Hope

Officials of two Victoria shipyards last night agreed that one or the other of them may still get the contract to build a $4,000,000 dredge on which a Vancouver shipyard was apparently the low bidder.

But the hope, said one of them, is a slim one.

H. S. Hammill, general manager of Victoria Machinery Depot, said the complex bidding system might allow one of the local yards to capture the federal government dredge contract on which Burrard Dry Dock Co. Ltd. of Vancouver submitted the lowest tender.

He said loss of the contract to the Vancouver firm would be a blow to the shipbuilding industry here.

"It is a two-year job for a lot of men," he said.

H. A. Wallace, vice-president and managing director of Yarrow's Ltd., the other Victoria firm, was quick to say that he did not consider announcement of the bids a final indication that Victoria has lost the contract.

"The bidding was very complex and contains alternatives," stated Mr. Wallace. "I think it is too soon to count the cause lost—accurate analysis of the bids will take some time."

In tenders opened at Ottawa Wednesday, three B.C. firms submitted at least two proposals each for building the Fraser River dredge.

Contract will be let shortly, it is believed.

Burrard bid was $3,615,959 and $3,857,427; VMD's $3,866,116 and $4,052,116; Yarrow's, $3,802,565 and $3,931,511.

Tenant Electors: Deadline Is Near

City clerk Frank Hunter yesterday appealed to tenant-electors not now on the voters' list to register at city hall well before the deadline of 5 p.m. Sept. 30.

He said there are some 1,700 trades licence-holders in Victoria who are not properly owners, but could be on the list as tenant-electors. Only 170, less than 10 per cent, have registered, Mr. Hunter said.

He pointed out that people who do not live in the city, but have been tenants of property in the city for at least six months, are eligible to vote in the city.

Food Left on Burners Sets Off Fire Scare

Saanich firemen answering an alarm at 666 Gorge Road West late last night found someone had left a pot of food on a gas stove and gone out for the evening.

An elderly tenant in a basement suite of the house was alerted by neighbors who saw smoke "curling up around the roof" and called the fire brigade.

Mrs. Violet Nutter, 60, was preparing for bed when Thomas McNally and his daughter Celia pounded on her door to warn her. She thought they were burglars at first.

The residents of the upper part of the house are Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCreery.

Shopping Mall Plan Tops, Says Expert

Victoria's downtown shopping mall proposal which will go to the ratepayers next December for the second time was described by a top U.S. planner yesterday as "one of the best I've ever seen."

Here as a guest of the capital region planning association, Gordon Whitnall, the man credited with inventing zoning regulations for community development said he was not sufficiently versed in local problems to state how seriously the plan was needed. "But I see evidence here of an unnatural, diseased condition which is almost universal in cities we have inherited from the past," he warned.

Mr. Whitnall, who is now a consultant planner and lecturer at the University of California, has conducted major studies of "central business district decay" in most large American cities.

Multi-Million-Dollar Assault Faces Taxpayer Pocketbooks

Greater Victoria property owners had better start bracing themselves for another multi-million-dollar assault on their pocketbooks in the near future.

This time it's for schools—mostly to accommodate the bumper crop of war babies who are now jampacking junior and senior high schools.

Greater Victoria school board warned in a report yesterday that another building program will be necessary when the current, $4,470,000 project is completed next year.

This year's highest-ever enrolment of 21,269 in the area's 35 elementary schools and 11 junior and senior high schools tops the 1958 total by 1,030.

"Fortunately," the report says, "sufficient classrooms are available, except in Esquimalt where the junior and senior high pupils are temporarily on shift-system."

Opening of the new Esquimalt High School, probably in January, will eliminate the shifts.

Oaklands and Doncaster Elementary Schools are accommodating four Grade 7 classes to take the pressure off S. J. Willis and Lansdowne Junior High Schools.

This will be remedied with the opening next fall of Gordon Head Junior High School, plus the construction at S. J. Willis of four more classrooms.

Other pressure-relievers will be the addition of another storey at Mount Douglas High School, and more classrooms at Glanford Elementary and Oak Bay High Schools.

"During the last three years," the report pointed out, "the Greater Victoria school board has almost kept pace with the need for classroom accommodation . . . but has done so with the realization that more schools would have to be built after 1960."

PERSONAL MENTION

Victoria Golf Club will be the scene Friday evening of a dinner dance. The affair will follow the final of the season's mixed foursome afternoons. Len Acres Orchestra will play.

'Oh, Help Me Out of Here'

NEW YORK (UPI)—Grand motherly-looking Mrs. Nina Khrushchev, wife of the boss of all the Russias, was guest of honor yesterday at a luncheon in the Louis XVI room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Mrs. Khrushchev sipped champagne and ate crabmeat and steak with the wife of the mayor and wives of some of New York's richest men while her husband was being honored elsewhere.

The honored guest said the day had left her head spinning. Mrs. Khrushchev's day began with a train ride from Washington to New York, past factories and parking lots crammed with pastel-colored automobiles, past shopping centres and supermarkets and finally into the financial heart of the nation.

WHISKED BY LIMOUSINE

She was whisked by limousine to the Waldorf-Astoria towers, where she and her family are occupying the presidential suite. Then she appeared at lunch, wearing a black suit. She was hatless and wore no makeup or jewelry.

Among those who joined Mrs. Robert F. Wagner, wife of the mayor and Mrs. Khrushchev in the room named for the last king of France, were Mrs. Nelson A. Rockefeller, wife of the governor of New York.

Mrs. Wagner gave Mrs. Khrushchev a gold key to the city and Mrs. Khrushchev responded with a brief speech in halting English. "Thank you for your hospitality to myself, my husband, my family and to my country," she said.

Then she ran into a stampede of newspaper women. "Oh, help me out of here," she called to Mrs. Wagner. "I'm smothering. I can't breathe..."

It was Mrs. Khrushchev's first formal appearance in this country without her husband. With her were her two step-daughters, Yulia and Rada. Yulia wore a light blue gabardine suit, pink shoes and a matching pink bag. Rada was in black and red jumper and red jacket. Mrs. Khrushchev said she liked what she had seen in New York, which was not much.

You're Not Pampering Tots By Making Food Colorful

By MURIEL WILSON

Meals are important even to little boys who run away from home. A four year old (who happens to be my grandson) announced one morning that he was leaving home forever, and that "I'm never coming back neither, except for meals." This little fellow is a good eater and he enjoys his meals. "Mummy makes everything good!"

Not all children are interested in eating. I have known children who seemed to have practically no interest in food, even desserts. Fortunately this is a temporary phase. However it's a phase that nearly drives mothers crazy. As a mother and a grandmother I have had some experience with children who were poor eaters. Along the way I have made a few observations on how to make meals more interesting to children.

Little sleepyhead has finished a nourishing lunch and is off for her afternoon nap. (Photo by H. J. Heinz Co.)

SENSITIVE TO COLOR

Children are sensitive to color, they love pretty food and are attracted to food that is bright and gay.

Those who are fussy eaters should be given midget-sized helpings, a large helping overwhelms them and they usually turn away without even trying the food.

Fancy shapes intrigue children. Instead of a plain slice of bread use a gingerbread man or animal cookie cutters. Butter Mr. Gingerbread or Peter Rabbit or spread them with peanut butter and use bits of carrot for faces.

There is appeal in funny faced cookies... spread a thin coating of bright red jelly on oatmeal cookies and make raisin faces.

MORE ACCEPTABLE

There are a few tricks to make Junior's milk more acceptable... drop a colored ice cube into the milk. Color with vegetable coloring. A red cherry can be frozen in the cube.

Whip a banana into the milk. If you haven't a blender use an egg beater. Add a small ball of chocolate or strawberry ice cream to a glass of milk.

Sometimes it charms a child to pour their own milk or fruit juice... provide a tiny pitcher and mug or glass.

Raisins or dates in the porridge adds interest.

BIRDS' NESTS

Make birds' nests of mashed potatoes... make a mound and hollow it out with the back of a spoon and fill with green peas, chopped carrots or corn.

Fixing an attractive meal for a child is not pampering. It is pampering though to give them a lot of choices of food. "Dear, would you like flakes, popples or crackles this morning?" or "Darling, would you like your egg boiled or scrambled or shall mother poach it?"

NO DECISIONS

Small children should not be asked to make these decisions. Fix the food you want them to have attractively and take it for granted they are going to eat it. If they don't... no coaxing, no substitutes. Mother knows best.

Brief Discussed By Pensioners

The brief recently presented to the B.C. provincial cabinet and reading and discussion of the minutes of the annual convention were highlights of the first regular meeting of the season of the Old Age Pensioners' Organization held in the Moose Hall.

Plans for the fall bazaar were completed. It will be held Oct. 6 at 2 p.m. in the Douglas Room, HBC.

Engagement Announced

Mr. and Mrs. H. Youson, 875 Richmond Road, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Barbara Ann, to Mr. Ralph John Pettie, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Pettie, of Burnaby. Rev. H. J. Armistage will officiate at the wedding, which will take place Saturday, Oct. 3, at 8 p.m. in the chapel of Royal Jubilee Hospital.—(Photo by Chevron.)

Callas Chilled

BILBAO, Spain (UPI) — Opera singer Maria Callas received a lukewarm reception last night at her first public performance since she announced her intended separation from her husband-manager Battista Meneghini.

The Diva flew in from Athens in a private plane owned by Greek millionaire ship owner Aristotle Onassis with whom she has been linked romantically. Miss Callas said before the concert that her appearance here was a "test" because of her current "sentimental crisis." The 2,200 persons in the sell-out audience failed to get very excited over the Diva. There was only mild applause at the end of her performance.

Gagliardi 'Dandy Patient'

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Highways Minister Gagliardi, described as a "dandy patient," left hospital yesterday. The minister broke his elbow when he fell off a fence while looking at some horses.

He must remain quiet in bed at home for two or three days, Mrs. Gagliardi said.

"Mr. Gagliardi was a dandy patient," hospital officials said. "We knew he would be, but he was really most co-operative and helpful to nurses."

Canada's Average Incomes

Architects on Top, Farm Help Bottom

OTTAWA (CP)—Consulting engineers and architects in Canada earned an average $14,581 in income during 1957 to keep their ranking as the country's top money-earners and taxpayers.

Medical doctors and surgeons found themselves in the second most lucrative profession, with average incomes of $13,978.

Employees of farm enterprises were at the bottom of the list of taxpayers, with average incomes of $2,216 in the year, and nurses were only one step higher with average incomes of $2,335.

These figures were published today by the revenue department in a 145-page analysis of the money Canadians earn and the amount they pay in income taxes.

It showed the average income of Canadian taxpayers—the book ignores those who don't pay taxes—rose to $3,834 in 1957 from $3,673. On the average they paid $347 in taxes, compared with $330 in 1956.

The number of Canadians in the $100,000-and-over income bracket rose to 453 from 432.

Lawyers and notaries, ranking third as income earners, increased their average earnings to $13,244 from $12,617.

The top five income rankings were monopolized by professional people. Accountants were fourth with average incomes of $10,879 and dentists fifth at $10,234.

Other average incomes: Salesmen, $5,354; business proprietors $5,238; fishermen $3,754; farmers, $3,739.

The main bulk of income tax revenue came from persons listed as employees. Their average incomes in 1957 rose to $3,617 from $3,445.

Chest Has Sitters But Lacks a Pole

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wanted — one 100-foot pole, one sponsor, and one pole-sitter who is also, preferably, a disc jockey. Apply: Vancouver Community Chest.

The Community Chest put its advertisement in the newspapers last week. Now it has 20 prospective pole-sitters but no sponsor and, worst of all, no pole.

None of the applicants for the pole-sitting job is a disc jockey but committee chairman Frank Bernard is considering bids from an ex-paratrooper, assorted adventurers, unemployed workmen, and — if he's read the applicant's signature correctly — one girl.

As far as the pole-sitter is concerned, the main hitch is that it could be a long time before he or she can come down.

Bernard wants someone to mount the pole Sept. 28, when the Community Chest's drive for $3,121,592 opens, and not come down until the objective is reached.

Armed Thugs Still Loose

Murder Suspect Called 'Charming'

OTTAWA (UPI)—One of eastern Ontario's biggest man-hunts—for two kidnap and armed robbery suspects—was stepped up late yesterday when police learned that one of the men was also wanted in connection with the 1957 slaying of a policeman.

Police chief Joe Schute of Morrisburg said he would like to question Warren Durning, 27, of Chesterville, identified as one of the two fugitives.

Durning, a former seaway worker, was sought in connection with the slaying of Constable Ronald Pitt of Morrisburg, Aug. 24, 1957 in a gunfight.

The other wanted man was identified as Richard Madison, 17, of Boston.

A huge posse of more than 70 armed police aided by farmers yesterday combed fields in the Casselman area, about 40 miles east of Ottawa.

They were last reported seen west of Casselman, Wednesday night when a farmer surprised them as they attempted to fill his truck with gasoline.

Police warned farmers that the pair might descend on another farm to get food.

Rampaging Elephants Causing Famine

ACCRA, Ghana (Reuters)—Rampaging elephants are threatening to bring about a famine in the Kenyasi district of western Ghana. The elephants have pushed down buildings, trampled crops and polluted water supplies in the area.

McEwen 'Lone' Voice In Convention Vote

By R. D. MARRION
Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA—Ald. Elmer McEwen of Victoria yesterday was one of two municipal representatives who opposed further attempts to gain a new deal for municipal taxpayers from the provincial government.

He and Ald. Mrs. E. A. Van Maarion of Nelson stood alone when the majority voted to carry on the year-old fight for the "new deal."

The Union of B.C. Municipalities is vigorously proposing that the senior governments, particularly the province, should pay for services to people such as education and the municipal property-owners should pay, unaided by provincial grants, only for services to property.

Ald. McEwen said afterward that it was a good thing Premier Bennett believed in Santa Claus because if the municipalities were successful "he'll sure have to be one."

But despite rejection of the proposals by Municipal Affairs Minister Wesley Black the UBCM, in convention here, planned to press on in its drive and as an interim measure to try to persuade the provincial government to pay the full cost of teachers' salaries.

"It's our duty to bring home to the taxpayers what we hope to do," the newly-elected UBCM president Charles MacSorely of Burnaby said last night.

Mr. Black on Wednesday quoted figures to show that the B.C. government treated its municipalities better financially than any of the other western provinces. Reeve Murison quoted Dominion Bureau of Statistics figures which he said showed that in percentage of provincial revenues devoted to municipalities B.C. had sunk to fourth in 1958-59.

The provincial government had opposed paying 100 per cent of teachers' salaries because it said it would be the death of school board autonomy. Reeve Murison reported. But, he said, "the province, though finding only 50 per cent of the money, in fact calls over 95 per cent of the tune."

He said government representatives had suggested an alternative policy called "parallelism." According to this, all services are, in effect, joint services, and all sources of revenue a joint pool. "However attractive this may seem, it can only work successfully if a fair catch limit is placed on all who fish the pool."

Buyers Eye Pound Cars

Police "sale" of five old cars, long impounded on their parking lot on Fisgard, has attracted a procession of prospective buyers.

The cars will be sold on an "as is" basis, and offers have been made for singles and for the group.

Oak Bay Resolution Defeated by UBCM

By Colonist Staff Reporter

KELOWNA—An Oak Bay attempt to gain power to compel owners to fence swimming pools was defeated yesterday at the annual meeting of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Oak Bay wanted the UBCM to ask the provincial government for municipal power to "require the owners to fence swimming pools, and to prescribe the types of fence."

Coun. Alan Cox told the convention that swimming pools were beginning to be a problem as allures for children. But UBCM solicitor C. D. McQuarrie held that a bylaw requiring private pools to be fenced would possibly make owners more liable to heavy damages.

A Saanich resolution intended to pave the way for Greater Victoria adoption of the Capital Region Planning Board's master plan for future physical development was passed but Mayor Percy Scurrell said later it didn't go far enough to ensure that Victoria city would adopt the plan.

As matters stand, once adopted the plan would be binding on the municipalities of Greater Victoria and Saanich Peninsula unless the board agreed to changes.

The Saanich resolution asked for provision for appeals against board decisions.

A Richmond resolution passed without discussion by the convention could make a big difference in passing money bylaws such as a bylaw to build a new city hall.

At present a 60 per cent majority is needed for passage in a referendum. The resolution calls for legislation making only a simple majority necessary.

Courtroom Parade

Drive-In Incident Costs Freedom

For his part in a disturbance Sept. 12 at a Douglas Street drive-in Donald Thomas McDonald, 846 Shamrock, was sentenced yesterday to one month in jail.

Magistrate William Ostler told McDonald in Saanich police court that he had no option but to sentence him, as he was on probation at the time of the offence.

In city court yesterday Gordon Bulmer, 935 North Park, was sentenced to four months in jail, concurrent, on charges of false pretences and theft of a television set.

The TV set, court was told, was stolen from a home and sold for $40 to a city-auction firm. The false pretences involved passing of a bad cheque at a supermarket.

Restitution of the $40 received for the TV set was ordered by the magistrate.

Convicted on a second charge of impaired driving,

William G. Aitken, 2740 Doncaster, was sent to jail for 20 days. Charge followed a collision of Aitken's car with another Wednesday at Vancouver and Johnson.

Magistrate Ostler said that, although the previous conviction was almost six years ago, he had no choice but to impose the jail term.

Suspended sentence, under bond of $500 for six months, was handed down to Douglas Amey, Work Point.

Amey had pleaded guilty to stealing a purse from a car in Beacon Hill Park, and cashing cheques found in the purse.

The fact that his previous record was good, and that he had remorsefully confessed what he had done to army authorities, led the magistrate to suspend sentence, he said.

At the same time, he warned Amey to give up his growing habit of gambling, which had led to the offence.

Boost College Students Told

The "boss" of Victoria College laid it on the line yesterday when he told a record number of students they'd have to start helping themselves.

Prizewinning Artist

Oak Bay Junior High School student Shirley Van Nes, 14, 2553 Dufferin, recently received third prize in oil-painting division at Pacific National Exhibition. Her entry was of goats in the Rocky Mountains.

College council chairman Judge J. B. Clearihue told the 1,000-plus students "to go out and boost for your college" by lending a hand in making the spring campaign for $1,500,000 a success.

20,000 FRIENDS

"If each one of you speaks to 20 people, that would give 20,000 friends to the college and would put us over next spring in the drive," the judge told the hordes of students who overflowed the auditorium.

Whatever the drive yields will be matched dollar for dollar by the provincial government, and the total will be used for new buildings.

NOT OVERLOOKED

But the Gordon Head property will not be overlooked, Judge Clearihue said, adding that a large playing field and a new gymnasium will be used there this fall and some of the army huts may be converted to dormitories in the spring.

"Unfortunately," he said, "there has been a certain amount of unwarranted criticism of Victoria College."

"But in spite of that we are building a university here in Victoria. We will build it slowly but very soundly."

Russian North Open Canadians Now Hope

OTTAWA (CP)—Hope was expressed yesterday that some Soviet action now may be forthcoming on a Canadian request for a visit to Russia's north country.

Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton said the welcome statement made Wednesday in Washington by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that he is willing to share Arctic data with Canada and the U.S.

Mr. Hamilton said some information now is obtained from translating journals and other scientific publications.

The things Canada would be interested in learning more about, he said, would include northern construction techniques, long-distance power transmission, hydrography, oceanography, meteorology and ice data and telecommunications.

Meanwhile, an aide said that Mr. Khrushchev's expressed willingness to co-operate in sharing information might speed a Canadian visit.

Water Street in St. John's, Nfld., is called the oldest business street in North America.

LET'S TALK

By Rudolf Flesch

What's the secret of long life?

A few weeks ago the Saturday Evening Post ran a three-part article by Dr. Gallup and his associates, reporting on a five-month study. The pollsters interviewed a cross-section of 402 people over 95, collecting their answers on a 221-item questionnaire. Their report is fascinating.

Did it disclose the secret? Well, yes and no. Dr. Gallup says the answers were inconclusive and contradictory. There was no common denominator—nothing that could be definitely said about diet, exercise, smoking, drinking and so on. Some of these centenarians never smoked in their lives, some chain-smoked big black cigars while they were talking to the Gallup man. Some eat sparingly, some stuff themselves with fats and carbohydrates. Some exercise, some don't.

But between the lines, and behind all their lives, mostly as farmers or laborers, kept on working into their 80's and 90's. The women kept on having babies into their 40's and 50's.

So here is the disappointing, boring, unappealing secret of long life: Whenever you have a chance to do something new and exciting, don't.

Passed Up Adventure

These 400 people, throughout their long, long lives, stayed put. Whenever adventure knocked on their doors, they passed it up.

They stayed put not only physically, but mentally too. Only a handful among them ever had a religious conversion—and the few who grew up as atheists stayed atheists. They didn't go in for diet fads, or health schemes, or success formulas, or exciting new hobbies, or anything.

The men among them, who worked all their lives, mostly as farmers or laborers, kept on working into their 80's and 90's.

So here is the disappointing, boring, unappealing secret of long life: Whenever you have a chance to do something new and exciting, don't.

Windflower Cowers

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One of the questions which comes fairly frequently to my desk is when to plant anemone corms. Judging by the number of such enquiries, this little bulb flower is becoming exceedingly popular, and rightly so, for there is no more charming flower either for garden decoration, for cutting and especially for arranging in low bowls.

Unlike most of our bulbs, the anemone is most accommodating and may be planted either in the spring or the fall. Early October is to my mind the ideal planting time and bulbs ordered now and set out next month will give a good account of themselves, producing masses of lovely bloom all next summer.

There are two kinds of anemones commonly planted. The first is the de Caen type, which produces single flowers in purple, white and red shades. The corms may be bought in a mixture or, by paying just a little more, you can get them in named varieties.

Some of the best are His Excellency, deep crimson with a white base; Anthony Fokker, very large, clear blue flowers on long stems; Hollandia, a poppy-like scarlet flower; Sylphide, in delicate mauve, and The Bride, a pure white anemone held on tall stems, excellent for cut flower purposes.

The other type is the St. Brigid anemone. These bear semi-double flowers in contrast to the single poppy-flowered de Caen type and come more often in soft pastel shades such as pink and mauve rather than the primary colors of the de Caens.

The soil in which the corms are planted should be dug over deeply and a good quantity of peat moss or leaf-mould incorporated in the site. In their natural state, these anemones are found in rather open woodland glades, which points up their liking for dappled or partial shade. This isn't absolutely necessary in our cool climate and the plants will perform quite satisfactorily in full sunshine if the soil contains enough organic material to keep it from drying out.

One thing about the anemone has always puzzled me. The name comes from the Greek anemos, meaning wind, and the plants are often referred to as Windflowers, yet in my experience the one thing these little plants detest is wind. Put them in a blustery, drafty site and they just pack up and quit. Give them a little protection from gusty winds and they'll take frost, rain, hail and baking sun all in their stride.

Another important point in the culture of the anemone is its love of lime. Acid soil such as would suit a rhododendron or a holly is absolute poison for this little plant and, unless the soil is known to be rich in calcium, it is best to incorporate two cupsful of pulverized limestone per square yard in the planting site.

The corms go in three inches deep and six inches apart and I believe it is some advantage to soak the rather hard corms overnight in a weak fertilizer solution—Planter's Punch—overnight before planting. Use any of the concentrated houseplant fertilizers you may happen to have on hand, one teaspoonful in a quart of warm water.

Corms planted next month can remain in position all through next summer, fall and winter, but should be taken up in midsummer 1961 and every summer thereafter, just after the foliage dies down. They should be spread out in an airy, shaded place to dry, then cleaned, divided and stored in dry sand until planted out again the following October. It won't kill the corms to leave them in the ground, but the flowers become small and short-stemmed if the corms are not lifted.

Anemones should never be planted under or near plum trees as the plant acts as a sort of Typhoid Mary for the Plum Rust disease.

The Viewing World

No Thrills in 'Paradise'

Show business is now fairly rife with oriental motifs.

James Michener, who has been riding this particular crest of popular sentiment with such books as "Tales of the South Pacific," "Sayonara," and the yet-to-be-published and monumental "Hawaii," feels strongly that we are redressing a serious imbalance in our culture.

Michener is currently helping to launch "Adventures in Paradise," an ambitious and, I'm afraid, pretty dull adventure series destined to be the anchor of ABC's Monday night TV lineup.

"From Hawaii west to the Asian coast stretches a world in which the untrammelled spirit and strong heart can find a life of unending excitement and challenge," it says here in a brochure heralding "Adventures in Paradise." About twenty minutes of one episode and the full hour of another were shown to a group of newspapermen who greeted the event calmly and perhaps even stonily.

"Adventures in Paradise" stars Gardener McKay, acclaimed as the new Rock Hudson and all that jazz.

His acting so far has been pretty rudimentary but, in fairness, very little has been required of him beyond staring at the horizon through a pair of binoculars, and shouting such things as: "Lower the spinnaker. Frizzle the mizzenmast. North by north-east and look hearty."

He plays the owner of an eighty-five-foot schooner named the Tiki which may very well be the star of the series. The great sea stories of the Pacific though have had tremendous characters and character development, yet character is what these two episodes didn't have enough, if any, of.

When the camera focused on a drunken pearl trader or a fanatic missionary, the stories picked up quality and drive. But the dialogue is studded with such lines as: "those infernal drums beating all night long" Or: "by the time we get to Palau, the pearl market may be sold out."

The full hour episode by Alvin Sapinsky called "Danger Zone" succeeded in making the rescue of a group of Polynesians from a hydrogen bomb explosion thoroughly uninteresting. Also sailors are going to squawk about the way that boat is being sailed. (You can't change direction 180 degrees without coming about, old boy.)

War Demoted in Billing

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Paramount's "War and Peace" is being shown in Russia with a slight change in title: "Peace and War."

Danny Thomas will retire from his television show by the end of 1960, I hear, and live on his ranch near Palm Springs. The idea is for his TV daughter to marry, and then the show will be of newweds, with Danny presenting Father's Daughter. Guest star will be Danny—but only now and then.

Reaction to the Metro "Ben Hur" previews in Dallas, Denver and Santa Barbara is making Leo the Lion purr with pleasure.

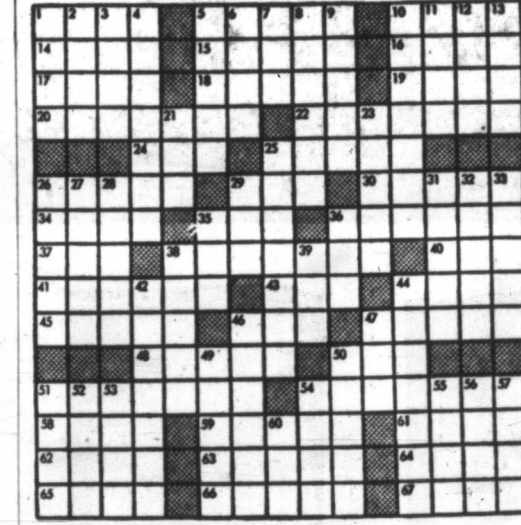

Bing Crosby's four sons might say "yes" if Bing asked them to appear on one of his specials for TV. Guests for special No. 1, Sept. 29, include Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong, Frank Sinatra, Peggy Lee and George Shearing.

The show must go on—so Kay Kendall's vaudevillean father, Terry, did his seaside show in England, after attending his daughter's funeral in London.

To keep Marlon Brando strictly to the visiting hours allowed him legally to see his son, the former Mrs. Brando, Anna Kashfi, has hired private guards. I'm sure Marlon will fight this—as I understand it, he loves his son and paid a whopping settlement to Anna. Right now Brando has a team of readers in New York searching for stories to follow his "Paris Blues," to follow his "Ugly American."

Jack Benny marks his 50th year in show business in 1960. Looking at the perennial 39-year-old, I find this impossible to believe. Says Benny, "I find it impossible to believe, too." I'm looking forward to his TV appearance with ex-president Harry Truman.

Did you know that Van Cliburn was the first person asked to star in "The Franz Liszt Story"? The Texan pianist declined the role and the $210,000 that went with it. Dirk Bogarde, who accepted, had previously refused the starring roles in "The Egyptian," "The Swan," and "Gigi"—which sort of evens things up.

There was a sad-looking actress at the Frankie Vaughan party the other eve who explained gloomily, "My psychotherapist is on vacation." Frankie, by the way, patronizes Prince Philip of England's tailor and looked very natty in his grey suit. The singer is sipping up sunshine in Las Vegas where he is giving forth nightly with standards and ballads.

Vincent Price, doing a "Secret World of Kids" for an Art Linkletter special, tells the story of two youngsters who broke into the museum of modern art and found themselves in front of a Jackson Pollock painting that literally dripped with blobs of paint. 'Bleeding' Saves Star's Life —And New Smell-O Film

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peter Lorre is alive today because a Spanish doctor resorted to the ancient medical practice of bleeding.

That's the word from Michael Todd, Jr., and Jack Cardiff, producer and director of "Scent of Mystery," the movie Lorre was making when he suffered a cerebral hemorrhage last May.

"When I heard what the doctor did," says young Todd, "I thought it was absolutely barbaric. But there's no doubt but that is what saved him—and, in a way, us too."

The picture, made in Todd's new Smell-O-Vision process, is the first picture ever made to smell on purpose. It was half finished when Lorre suffered his attack.

"We got five of the top heart specialists in Spain there immediately," says Cardiff. "They all said death was just a matter of hours."

"Then our company doctor cut him and let him bleed. He said it would reduce the blood pressure. It did."

Lorre was back before the cameras in less than two weeks, and finished the picture. Todd said it costs about $17,000 to equip a theatre with the special equipment that will enable the audience to smell the movie.

"We are playing it all for laughs," says Todd. "We don't expect our picture to win any art awards, but I guarantee fun."

In one scene Denham Elliott, the hero, and Lorre sit at a table and order coffee. As the camera focuses on Elliott's cup, the audience will get a whiff of fresh coffee. As the camera closes in on Lorre's cup, the smell will be that of brandy.

Lepers Return to Society

GENEVA (Reuters)—Leprosy, dread disease of tropical and equatorial countries, now affects at least 12,000,000 people throughout the world.

Of these, not more than 100,000 can be given in-patient treatment at hospitals.

The figures were disclosed by the World Health Organization's second expert committee on leprosy which recently concluded a week's discussions here.

Members of the committee, which included some of the world's greatest specialists on the disease, noted that due to greater knowledge about leprosy many sufferers received treatment while remaining with their families.

The committee agreed that the age-old custom of keeping leprosy sufferers apart from the rest of the community now was recognized as unnecessary from a medical point of view.

This was because of the relatively low infectiousness of the disease, which they considered should be dealt with as an ordinary public health problem in the same way as other communicable diseases.

They recommended that laws in some countries which require the segregation of leprosy sufferers should be abolished.

The experts said that early treatment could prevent the deformities caused by leprosy, the ugliness of which was responsible for the fear and loathing the disease aroused.

Sun-Day Princess

SIZES
10-18

For the warm autumn days ahead—choose this easy-sew princess with a sun-scooped neckline and swinging skirt. See the diagram—you can whip it up in less than a day.
Printed Pattern 9401:
Misses' sizes 10, 12, 14, 16,
18. Size 16 takes 4 1/2 yards
35-inch fabric.
Printed directions on each pattern part. Easier, accurate.
Send fifty cents (50c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this pattern.
Please print plainly, size, name, address, style number.

Puppet Mittens

by Laura Wheeler

ears wiggle, mouths open!
Delight a child with these merry mittens!
Jiffy-knit puppet mittens.
Pattern 507: Knitting directions, charts for puppy and pussy-cat in small, large sizes for children 4 to 10 years included.
Send thirty-five cents in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this pattern to Laura Wheeler Needlecraft
Department, The Daily
Colonist, 60 Front Street
West, Toronto, Ont. Print plainly pattern number, your name and address.
Send for a copy of 1959
Laura Wheeler Needlecraft
Book. It has lovely designs to order: embroidery, crochet, knitting, weaving, quilting, toys. In the book, a special surprise to make a little girl happy—a cut-out doll, clothes to color.

Business and Political Figure Eugene Diespecker Dies at 60

ENGENE DIESPECKER.

Eugene J. Diespecker, soldier, airman and well-known business and political figure in this area, died suddenly yesterday at his home at 1170 Camrose Crescent, at the age of 60.

Mr. Diespecker, service manager at Jameson Motors, where he has worked for 36 years, was on vacation at the time of his death.

Twice elected to Saanich council, Mr. Diespecker resigned in the middle of his second term in November, 1957, to contest the Saanich reeveship. Taking a stand against amalgamation, he was defeated by a narrow margin by Arthur Ash. He never ran for council again, but won acclaim for his work while serving on the Saanich court of revision.

Mr. Diespecker, born in South Africa, came to Victoria with his family in 1908. He went on active service in August, 1914, going overseas with the 48th Battalion as a bugler and serving at Ypres, the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele and Hill 70. Later he transferred to the R.A.F. returning to Victoria after the war.

In the Second World War he was on the headquarters staff of the 8th Canadian Division as chief security officer.

Mr. Diespecker is survived by his widow, Margaret, at home; a son, Eugene, studying for the ministry at UBC; and a daughter, Jill in training at Vancouver General Hospital.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by Haywards funeral home.

Quit Foreign Soil Khrushchev Plan?

CLEVELAND, Ohio (UPI) — Cyrus Eaton, Canadian-born industrialist, predicts that Premier Khrushchev will propose that both Russia and the United States immediately withdraw all their military forces from foreign soil along with drastic curtailment of arms spending by both countries.

U.S. EMBARGO HAS BACKFIRED KHRUSHCHEV TELLS BUSINESS

Will Overtake U.S. Faster Than Planned

NEW YORK (AP)—Premier Khrushchev told a gathering of businessmen Thursday night that United States restrictions on trade with Russia have backfired and in some instances even helped the Soviet Union.

The Soviet leader also said that production in his homeland is expanding so enormously that Russia can overtake the U.S. in economic development "more quickly than envisaged in our plans."

Khrushchev spoke to the Economic Club of New York at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Khrushchev struck twice at the U.S. embargo applying to sales of strategic goods to the Soviet Union.

"We are fighting and we will fight against all embargo lists in trade as an unreasonable practice," Khrushchev said in a prepared speech in Russian.

Some people — politicians rather than businessmen — seriously contend that by refusing to trade with Russia, "the United States retards the economic development of the U.S.S.R. and weakens its defensive might."

10 Years' Progress

Then, with his reference to Russian scientific achievements, Khrushchev told his audience that all present were familiar with the reports on Soviet satellites, rockets and economic growth. This progress has never been so swift, he said, as in the last decade.

Khrushchev said he had told former governor Averell Harriman of New York at a reception earlier and was repeating it that "the results of the ban on trade with the U.S.S.R. imposed in the United States as a repressive measure against the Soviet Union have been the very opposite of those hoped for by its authors."

"We have even benefitted to a certain extent by the policy which the United States pursued with regard to the Soviet Union in the field of trade."

To back that up, the Communist leader said that Russia had to develop the manufacture of machinery it did not have previously and had intended to buy from the U.S. Russia, he said, no longer depends on anyone for this machinery, so curtailment of trade with the Soviet Union "has strengthened rather than weakened us."

What Is the Sense?

So, he asked, what sense is there in American restrictions?

The premier said Russia trade with Britain, West Germany, France and Italy is rising. He asked another question:

"Why, then, must America remain apart? The question of trade is one of profit. If you do not find it profitable to buy our goods or sell your goods to us, do what you consider necessary."

Khrushchev tossed in a bit of a warning.

"It sometimes happens," he said, "that too choosy a bride will wait too long and find herself an old maid."

Saying some people are blinded by their dislike of socialism and communism, Khrushchev told the businessmen Russia is developing its economy and culture more quickly than is the United States.

His Own Ideology

He said he didn't want to impose his own ideology, even though he does not hide his Communist party membership. But he said, statistics talk for themselves of Russia's rapidly growing economic might. He called the results miraculous and went into a list of specific examples.

Whereas the plan for 1959 called for a 7.7-per-cent increase in production, he said, the actual increase in the first eight months of the year was 12 per cent. He translated this into an output rising $10,000,000,000 over the expected amount for the year.

And Khrushchev said that both in over-all economic development as well as in per capita production, Russia will be able to overtake the U.S. more quickly than was planned.

He and other Soviet leaders have said in the past that 1970 was the date for catching up. A new seven-year plan, ballyhooed as a major step in the drive to overtake American industrial output, began last January.

Russians claim they already are producing more steel, for example, than Britain, West Germany and France combined.

SQUAMISH, B.C. (CP) — Former Liberal MLA J. Gordon Gibson and Mrs. N. H. Marks almost drowned at Alice Lake near here Thursday while rescuing LAC Trevor Ellis, Sea Island, whose canoe capsized during a ground-search training exercise.

Nikita Flares at Hecklers, Threatens to Leave Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev flared angrily Thursday night at hecklers and threatened to leave a banquet hall unless they listened to his answer to a question.

He had been given a dinner by the Economic Club of New York and was involved in a question-and-answer period following a major address when he became angry.

The Soviet leader calmed

down afterward but not until he had heatedly shouted: "Surely you must show enough hospitality not to interrupt."

"If there is no desire to listen to me, I can go," Khrushchev was visibly upset when one of the dinner guests yelled "answer the question," and others groaned with dissent at his reply.

He had been asked to explain why Russia jammed American radio broadcasts, censored dispatches of Ameri-

Laos Farm Garb Masks Troops

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Laotian government troops are wearing farmers' clothes to prevent easy identification in their guerrilla war with Communist rebels, Brig. Gen. Ouan Rittkone said Thursday.

The army commander said fighting still is going on around Sam Tau fort, in northeastern Sam Neua province, which has changed hands four times since Saturday.

Ouan said rebels first took the fort in a mortar attack last Saturday, were driven out Sunday, recaptured the fort Tuesday and were driven out again Thursday.

As he announced continuing fighting, the United Nations fact-finding mission was given a 100-minute military briefing from maps—but no documentary evidence as yet—of Laotian claims that Communist North Viet Nam is aiding the Pathet Laos rebels.

Dealing with the situation in the south, Ouan said 2,000 Vietnamese refugees from Thailand had crossed the border into Laos. It was believed about 1,000 of them were armed and might possibly join the rebels.

Another Rocket Blasts Off As U.S. Continues Drive

India Death Toll High

River Bursts Into Bazaar

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The flooding Tapi River burst through a protective wall and poured into the city of Surat Thursday, covering two square miles within five minutes. Hundreds were believed drowned.

The waters rushed into the main bazaar area with such speed that hundreds were trapped. The water was 12 feet deep in some places. Many houses and cattle were swept away.

The inundation took place when one of the two ancient city walls collapsed as the river rose two feet above the danger mark. Several policemen keeping an eye on the river were reported missing. The Bombay state government said flood waters from Tapi and Narmada rivers had devastated coastal towns and villages. They estimated 5,000 peasant homes were washed away in the Ahmedabad district alone.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI)—The last of the temperamental Vanguard rockets blazed into dark skies early today in America's second attempt within 14 hours at placing an earth satellite in orbit.

The sleek, 72-foot-tall Vanguard, carrying a 50-pound "ice cream cone" satellite equipped to furnish data for man's first space map, roared from its pad at 1:20 a.m.

Project Vanguard, which closes its four-year career with this shot, sought its third satellite success in 11 tries.

Yesterday, new-born project Transit launched a Thor-Able rocket with a 255-pound instrumented package, but a faulty third-stage apparently caused failure. Transit hopes to orbit five earth satellites as the basis of a new system to aid navigation.

The pencil-slim Vanguard, whose moonlet was designed to study the earth's magnetic field, solar X-rays and space environmental conditions, belched yellow fire from the first of its three stages, eased from its pad slowly at first, then quickly gained speed.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) indicated the planned orbit would send the moonlet over the United States as far north as a line extending roughly from Columbia, S.C., past Atlanta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex., to slightly north of Long Beach, Calif.

ICE CREAM CONE

The magnesium-aluminum moonlet looked like an oversized ice cream cone—a 20-inch sphere whose 26-inch tapered tube held a magnetometer planned to precede the ball in flight. Sixty-two small silver-zinc cells with an estimated 90-day lifetime provided power. NASA said data from the satellite would be made available to the 66 nations—apparently including Russia—of the international geophysical year. Scientists planned to in-terrogate the satellite about 50 times a day, or about twice during each eight-minute pass over a tracking station.

NASA said space charts would be drawn from this and future magnetometer experiments, giving man his first space route map in his bid for the moon and planets. The magnetometer was designed to detect high-radiation pockets which a space traveller would try to avoid.

PREDICTED STORMS

The magnetometer also was designed to study unaccountable disturbances called magnetic storms, which rage in the earth's umbrella-like magnetic field. Scientists sought to learn whether the storms could be predicted and compensated for.

storm's four-day toll to 87 dead, 122 missing and 124 injured. The typhoon hit Miyako Island in the Southern Ryukyus Tuesday and roared north up the East China Sea and the Sea of Japan.

After moving across South Korea, the storm raced on north toward the Soviet-held Island of Sakhalin. Pusan, port city on the southern tip of the Korean peninsula was hit the hardest. Police said 25,834 persons were homeless from floods and tidal waves. An estimated 15,739 homes were washed away, damaged or destroyed.

Closely scrutinizing a slide projector bought from money raised with more than 130 man-hours of work by members of the Tansor PTA is school principal H. Lee Spencer. Money to buy the $180 machine came from eight card parties that required the work of five persons for three hours each night, food donated by 48 parents, a bazaar and a donation of $25 from the Tansor Community Club. Hunters, Chamber Oppose Move To Curb Shooting CHEMAINUS—The Rod and Gun Club and the Chamber of Commerce are opposing the municipal council's new bylaw to restrict the use of firearms in North Cowichan.

Both groups are preparing briefs to be presented to the council at its meeting Sept. 24. "This is the thin edge of the wedge. Unless we oppose it now, pretty soon we'll all have to go up to Nanaimo to hunt," chamber-member Robert Benie said at a meeting Wednesday.

Council has given first reading to the controversial bylaw which restricts hunting in all areas inside fire protection districts and public parks. Part of the bylaw states licences will have to be bought from the municipality to hunt legally in some of the closed areas.

Tully Rites Tomorrow At Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—United Church Sunday school teacher Mrs. Annie Tully, 70, a life member of the Canadian Red Cross, will be buried here tomorrow. She died in Chemainus Hospital Wednesday.

Born at Carlyle, Sask., she came to British Columbia in 1919 and to the Island in 1933, when she moved with her family to Ladysmith. She had lived at Chemainus for the last 18 years.

WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

Mrs. Tully was a member of the United Church Women's Auxiliary. Surviving are her husband, W. G. Tully, here; two sons, Ralph and Dr. Ronald C. Tully, both in Vancouver; a daughter, Mrs. P. M. Crichton, Barbados, British West Indies; four grandchildren, two brothers and three sisters.

FUNERAL SERVICE

Funeral service will be held at the United Church here at 3 p.m. Rev. Thomas J. McMillan will officiate. Cremation will follow.

Hirst's funeral chapel is in charge of arrangements. Instead of sending flowers, the family has asked friends to send donations to the Conquer Cancer fund.

Money Bylaw Vote Likely in Nanaimo

NANAIMO—A money bylaw to pay for the construction of a third junior high school for Nanaimo will likely be put to voters by next May.

Trustees of School District 68 yesterday said the additional school appeared necessary because of an increase in school population.

The increase also appears to make another elementary school necessary, trustees warned.

Plea, Venue Change Denied by Magistrate

DUNCAN—Magistrate A. C. Sutton yesterday refused to allow a plea of not guilty be changed to guilty for "convenience sake."

"The court wants to hear both sides if there's any doubt in your mind," he told Henry M. Gailus of Nanaimo, who wanted to change his plea on a charge of careless driving when he learned the case would have to be remanded.

"I've already taken off the time to come here," commented Gailus. "Can't I have it at Nanaimo?"

Magistrate Sutton refused to grant a change of venue and set next Tuesday for the trial.

Tariff Boost Motion Bucked By Chamber at Chemainus

CHEMAINUS—The Chamber of Commerce here is opposing a move by the Canadian Chamber that urges an increase in import tariffs.

Members have also decided to back up the B.C. Lumber Manufacturers' Association in their efforts against the senior chamber because the move "favors" eastern Canadian companies who do not rely on their exports.

Members felt "any increase in tariffs which would restrict trade, would be economically disastrous to our economy."

The resolution came through this chamber after the senior chamber presented a brief to the federal government which the lumbermen's association believes urges more import duties.

Chamber members here went on record as opposing the parts of the brief when they approved a motion presented by Bryce Page, manager of the MacMillan & Bloedel Ltd. sawmill here.

"We, as a chamber, should consider the importance of this brief and the effects it could have on the economy of our province, particularly in the lumber industry which is dependent upon its ability to sell its products in foreign markets," said Mr. Page.

Part of the chamber's motion reads: "The Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce is concerned that certain of the changes which are proposed in the submission could be interpreted as being restrictive to the fair exchange of goods between countries."

"We recognize the need for a revision of the act in order that it shall be more readily interpreted. At the same time we express the hope that the proposed changes would not be more restrictive and hence lead to retaliatory measures on the part of countries which currently purchase a considerable portion of the production in western Canada."

Duncan Court Kept Waiting As Accused Puts On Shoes

DUNCAN—John Stevenson kept the court here waiting yesterday morning while he put on his shoes, in the cells.

When he finally entered the court he sat down despite a motion by a police constable that he should remain standing.

"Stand up when I read the charge," Magistrate A. C. Sutton said.

"I can't, I'm sick. I'm taking medicine," said Stevenson. "Lock him up," ordered the magistrate. "He seems to have been able to get around yesterday."

The magistrate said Stevenson had been arrested the night before and police had laid a charge of being drunk in a public place. The case was remanded until this morning.

As Student Dress Improves So Do Marks

"Code of dress" in Greater Victoria high schools has not only eliminated "provocative and unsightly" clothes, but has also raised the marks of some of the students.

"This seems to be the case, although there's no scientific evidence," says John Gough, superintendent of school district 61.

"There must be conformity, rightly or wrongly, to please the majority of the members of the community," he said last night in announcing the continuation of censorship of students' clothing.

Forms are now being mimeographed for distribution to parents, for them to read and then sign, "otherwise the forms might be thrown away on the way home," said Mr. Gough.

By wearing exaggerated clothes, "they're just calling attention to themselves . . . they're show-offs, and showing off certainly isn't desirable," he said.

"They're trying to ape somebody . . . I don't say they act like real hoodlums, but leather jackets, long hair and other extreme clothing are not suitable for school."

Mr. Gough agreed that such girls' clothing as tight skirts and snug sweaters were too provocative.

"It's distracting to the boys," Parents co-operated well last year with teachers in seeing that the dress code was observed, the superintendent said. "And there was a tendency for the marks of the extremely-dressed students to improve with their clothing," he said.

"However, we can't generalize about them . . . there's no scientific evidence."

"But I agree it's conceivable that the bad students—the bad element—are these people whose dress we object to."

Mr. Gough also made the point that the code of dress tended to reduce the competition—especially among girls—concerning clothes, which plagues many parents.

Here's what the clothing guide will suggest:

ing. Simple, neat hair stylings. Makeup, if any, modest and simple; practical shoes.

Boys: Short haircuts without sideburns; no tightly-fitted or highly-draped trousers or those cut low at the waist. Plain shirts with only the top button undone, if worn without a tie. No leather motorcycle jackets, metal trimmed jackets, or metal-shod boots or shoes.

Woman Dies Men Hurt In Smashup

One woman died and two men were injured when a small car went out of control and rolled over several times on highway 12 miles west of Sooke about 3 p.m. yesterday.

Mrs. Joan Dulmage, 39, of Nanaimo, driver of the car, died of head injuries at St. Joseph's Hospital about two hours after she was brought in by West Coast ambulance.

MINOR INJURIES

Alexander Caton, 1219 Pandora, passenger, was released from St. Joseph's after he was treated for minor injuries. In satisfactory condition at the same hospital last night was another passenger, John Geddes, who gave his address as the York Hotel. He suffered back injuries in the crash.

Police said a third passenger, Jim Nelson of Jordan River, was uninjured.

The accident occurred on Coal Creek hill 12 miles from Sooke. Colwood RCMP said the car left the road on a curve and rolled over several times before coming to a halt upside down in the middle of the road.

The ambulance crew who rushed the three injured persons in to hospital said that the roof of the small car was caved in and that the chassis was badly smashed.

LYING ON PAVEMENT

They said that prior to their arrival Mrs. Dulmage had been lifted onto a seat taken from the car because gasoline was trickling across the road to where she was lying on the pavement and it was feared the gasoline might catch fire.

Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, was notified last night. He said it was probable that an inquest will be held.

Lower Away Men

How to get seriously injured "casualty" off top of two-storey building is practised here by PPCLI soldiers who have converted Work Point Barracks obstacle course into "national survival" training ground to fill new role of Canadian Army.—(Colonist photo.)

National Survival Course

Saviours, Not Killers New Role for Soldiers

Canadian soldiers taking intensive "national survival" training here in line with the army's new wartime role will soon be as qualified to save a human life as they are to take one.

A Colonist reporter-photographer team which toured the Work Point Barracks training ground of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and allied units yesterday watched troops training as diligently to become saviours as they ever have to become killers.

SMOKING RIFLE

To train modern Canadian soldier is not filling his traditional role behind the smoking barrel of a modern automatic rifle he can be seen performing such seemingly incongruous tasks as administering plasma to a civilian "casualty," detecting radiation, fighting a forest fire or even directing traffic.

But incongruous tasks these are not.

VERY ESSENCE

In the words of Maj. Robert F. Bruce, second in command of the PPCLI here, they are the very essence of the "national survival" duties imposed upon the army a few months ago.

"Directing traffic may seem a peculiar task for a fighting man," Maj. Bruce said, "but the national survival role is designed to enable the nation to recover and fight back following a nuclear attack, and streams of uncontrolled civilian traffic around a target area would hamper recovery."

TOP INSTRUCTORS

To train soldiers to fulfill their new duties as soon as possible the army is utilizing top instructors regardless of their military status.

Traffic control knowledge is being imparted by RCMP personnel who have experience in that field, and yesterday a member of the Vancouver fire department was here on loan to give lectures on casualty removals from damaged buildings.

NEW PROGRAM

The new program of training is nowhere more evident at Work Point than on the ground usually occupied by the typical military obstacle course.

Where once they learned to ford a stream and keep their powder dry, they are now learning to ford a stream and keep their stretcher patient dry.

And where once they learned how to use a bayonet they are now learning to use a needle and a plasma bottle.

But in spite of all this the army's answer to the question, "Is the Canadian soldier becoming a purely defensive soldier?" is a ringing "no."

First major test of the Princess Pats' new skills will come next week when they will climb aboard more than 100 army transports for a four-day Vancouver Island exercise which will culminate Thursday with their "re-entry" into an "atom-bombed" Victoria.

Member To Back Subsidy

Victoria MP A. DeB. McPhillips yesterday said he would support a subsidized ferry service for Victoria "if a subsidy is needed to keep the Victoria-Vancouver service going."

"It is our basic constitutional right to have steamship connection with trans-continental railways, but as far as I know the CPR has not asked for a subsidy," Mr. McPhillips said.

CANADA SHOULD PAY

"But, if a subsidy would accomplish continuation of the service the government of Canada should pay for it," he said. He pointed out a subsidy here would be small when compared to that paid to maintain service to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland.

Mr. McPhillips stressed that any subsidy should not be a temporary measure, just until the provincial government ferries are in operation.

DUCKING PROBLEM

"That would be ducking the problem," he said.

He said the provincial government ferries which are scheduled to operate between Sidney and Tsawwassen "will not serve the port of Victoria and primarily their purpose will be to serve the notoring public and the truckers, but not the individual travellers."

"We would be bowing out of our constitutional rights if we didn't insist on boat service to Victoria harbor," Mr. McPhillips said.

So Says Gruber

Who Achieved Suez Peace? —Beethoven

Who brought about the recent Suez cease-fire? The United Nations, you say? Not so, says Hans Gruber, conductor of the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

It was Beethoven!

FORCE FOR PEACE

Claim was made as an illustration of Mr. Gruber's theme that music in general (and the Victoria Symphony in particular) deserves everyone's support because it is the world's greatest single force for peace.

"An American and a Russian can sit side by side at a concert and there is no conflict between them . . . only peace," he said.

TWO YEARS AGO

To explain his claim about Beethoven and the Suez, Mr. Gruber referred back to the time approximately two years ago when the dispute was at its most bitter stage—and seemingly far away from settlement.

One night during that period the New York Philharmonic put on a special concert for the UN delegates, as it does every year, said Mr. Gruber.

"They performed Beethoven's Ninth Symphony."

NO COINCIDENCE

"And the next morning," he said, "it was no coincidence that their differences had evaporated and a cease-fire was ordered."

The whole of the conductor's short, pithy address was frankly a plea for financial support for the Victoria Symphony Orchestra.

"I ask for your support because a symphony orchestra is an out-and-out economic asset even though it is always a deficit-budget operation," he said.

$85,000 A YEAR

This is so, he explained, because the symphony needs $85,000 a year to operate "and this is placed in active circulation. It would lie dormant if it were not for us."

Work is also provided for 73 persons, he said, and the orchestra also requires the regular services of a large number of city businesses.

But the best reason of all

Fire Prevention Week Proclaimed

The week of Oct. 4 to 10 has, through proclamation by Queen Elizabeth, been designated Fire Prevention Week for Canada.

During that week, Canadians everywhere are urged to take extra steps to prevent fire of any type.

DUNCAN — Mattin Logging Co. Ltd. was fined $10 in Dun-

Magistrate A. C. Sutton said the company "took a chance" that it wouldn't be caught. He made the remark after Mrs. W. N. Mattin pleaded guilty for the company.

FULFORD HARBOR — A horseshoe tossing tournament will be held at the Fulford Harbor home of James Groschart Sept. 30. The competition is open to anyone.

CAMPBELL RIVER — A new radio-telephone relay station to allow future expansion of the north coast radio chain is being built by Northwest Telephone Company at Newcastle Ridge, west of Kelsey Bay.

Newcastle Ridge station will relay radio-telephone calls between Campbell River and Alert Bay. Carl Swabey, coastal district manager, said the site is better suited for expansion of the coast system than the present relay points of Turn Harbor and Hardwicke Island. Disposition of these two points has not been decided.

NORTH COWICHAN (CP) — Counsellor Anthony Staples is acting-reeve while Reeve C. P. Murison is attending the convention of the Union of B.C. Municipalities at Kelowna. He will retain the post until Sept. 20.

NANAIMO — Chiropractors throughout Vancouver Island are again offering their services free to all school children for spinal examinations.

This is the third year the service has been offered as part of a province-wide scheme. Results will be tabulated and sent to the federal government.

LADYSMITH — One Richard Donald Warda is one of 47 students who have been awarded scholarships to continue their studies at the University of British Columbia.

Mr. Warda, who matriculated from Ladysmith High School in 1958, is studying at UBC for his honors degree in chemistry.

He was awarded a $300 scholarship from the Col. Victor Spencer fund.

NANAIMO — National Chamber of Commerce president A. C. Ashforth will be guest speaker at a Nanaimo chamber meeting at the Malaspina Hotel this evening.

Opening of the new Esquimalt High School, probably in January, will eliminate the shifts.

Oaklands and Doncaster Elementary Schools are accommodating four Grade 7 classes to take the pressure off S. J. Willis and Lansdowne Junior High Schools.

This will be remedied with the opening next fall of Gordon Head Junior High School, plus the construction at S. J. Willis of four more classrooms.

Other pressure-relievers will be the addition of another storey at Mount Douglas High School, and more classrooms at Glanford Elementary and Oak Bay High Schools.

"During the last three years," the report pointed out, "the Greater Victoria school board has almost kept pace with the need for classroom accommodation . . . but has done so with the realization that more schools would have to be built after 1960."

Multi-Million-Dollar Assault Faces Taxpayer Pocketbooks

Greater Victoria property owners had better start bracing themselves for another multi-million-dollar assault on their pocketbooks in the near future.

This time it's for schools—mostly to accommodate the bumper crop of war babies who are now jampacking junior and senior high schools.

Greater Victoria school board warned in a report yesterday that another building program will be necessary when the current, $4,470,000 project is completed next year.

This year's highest-ever enrolment of 21,269 in the area's 35 elementary schools and 11 junior and senior high schools tops the 1958 total by 1,030.

"Fortunately," the report says, "sufficient classrooms are available, except in Esquimalt where the junior and senior high pupils are temporarily on shift system."

'Overtake U.S. Even Faster'

NEW YORK (AP)—Premier Khrushchev told a gathering of businessmen Thursday night that United States restrictions on trade with Russia have backfired and in some instances even helped the Soviet Union.

The Soviet leader also said that production in his homeland is expanding so enormously that Russia can overtake the U.S. in economic development "more quickly than envisaged in our plans."

Khrushchev spoke to the Economic Club of New York at a dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

Khrushchev struck twice at the U.S. embargo applying to sales of strategic goods to the Soviet Union.

"We are fighting and we will fight against all embargo lists in trade as an unreasonable practice," Khrushchev said in a prepared speech in Russian.

Some people—politicians rather than businessmen—seriously contend that by refusing to trade with Russia, "the United States retards the economic development of the U.S.S.R. and weakens its defensive might."

10 Years' Progress

Then, with his reference to Russian scientific achievements, Khrushchev told his audience that all present were familiar with the reports on Soviet sputniks, rockets and economic growth. This progress has never been so swift, he said, as in the last decade.

Khrushchev said he had told former governor Averell Harriman of New York at a reception earlier and was repeating it that "the results of the ban on trade with the U.S.S.R. imposed in the United States as a repressive measure against the Soviet Union have been the very opposite of those hoped for by its authors."

To back that up, the Communist leader said that Russia had to develop the manufacture of machinery it did not have previously and had intended to buy from the U.S. Russia, he said, no longer depends on anyone for this machinery, so curtailment of trade with the Soviet Union "has strengthened rather than weakened us."

What Is the Sense?

So, he asked, what sense is there in American restrictions?

The premier said Russia's trade with Britain, West Germany, France and Italy is rising. He asked another question:

"Why, then, must America remain apart? The question of trade is one of profit. If you do not find it profitable to buy our goods or sell your goods to us, do what you consider necessary."

Khrushchev tossed in a bit of a warning.

"It sometimes happens," he said, "that too choosy a bride will wait too long and find herself an old maid."

Saying some people are blinded by their dislike of socialism and communism, Khrushchev told the businessmen Russia is developing its economy and culture more quickly than is the United States.

His Own Ideology

He said he didn't want to impose his own ideology, even though he does not hide his Communist party membership. But, he said, statistics talk for themselves of Russia's rapidly growing economic might. He called the results miraculous and went into a list of specific examples.

Whereas the plan for 1959

called for a 7.7-per-cent increase in production, he said, the actual increase in the first eight months of the year was 12 per cent. He translated this into an output rising $10,000,000,000 over the expected amount for the year.

And Khrushchev said that both in over-all economic development as well as in per capita production, Russia will be able to overtake the U.S. more quickly than was planned.

He and other Soviet leaders have said in the past that 1970 was the date for catching up. A new seven-year plan, ballyhooed as a major step in the drive to overtake American industrial output, began last January.

Russians claim they already are producing more steel, for example, than Britain, West Germany and France combined.

Vanguard III Goes into Orbit Ending U.S. Losing Streak

River Bursts Into Bazaar

BOMBAY, India (AP)—The flooding Tapi River burst through a protective wall and poured into the city of Surat Thursday, covering two square miles within five minutes. Hundreds were believed drowned.

The waters rushed into the main bazaar area with such speed that hundreds were trapped. The water was 12 feet deep in some places. Many houses and cattle were swept away.

The inundation took place when one of the two ancient city walls collapsed as the river rose two feet above the danger mark. Several policemen keeping an eye on the river were reported missing.

The Bombay state government said flood waters from Tapi and Narmada rivers had devastated coastal towns and villages. They estimated 5,000 peasant homes were washed away in the Ahmedabad district alone.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced at 1:08 a.m. PDT today that a Vanguard III satellite has gone into successful orbit around the earth—America's second attempt within 14 hours at placing a satellite in orbit.

The sleek, 72-foot-tall Vanguard, carrying a 50-pound "ice cream cone" satellite equipped to furnish data for man's first space map, roared from its pad at 10:20 p.m.

For Project Vanguard, which closes its four-year career with this shot, it marked its third satellite success in 11 tries.

FAILURE

Yesterday, new-born Project Transit launched a Thor-Able rocket with a 235-pound instrumented package, but a faulty third-stage apparently caused failure. Transit hopes to orbit five earth satellites as the basis of a new system to aid navigation.

The pencil-thin Vanguard, whose moonlet was designed to study the earth's magnetic field, solar X-rays and space environmental conditions, belched yellow fire from the first of its three stages, eased from its pad slowly at first, then quickly gained speed.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) indicated the planned orbit would send the moonlet over the United States as far north as a line extending roughly from Columbia, S.C., past Atlanta, Ga., and Dallas, Tex., to slightly north of Long Beach, Calif.

ICE CREAM CONE

The magnesium-aluminum moonlet looked like an oversized ice cream cone—a 20-inch sphere whose 26-inch tapered tube held a magnetometer planned to precede the ball in flight. Sixty-two small silver-zinc cells with an estimated 90-day lifetime provided power. NASA said data from the satellite would be made available to the 66 nations—apparently including Russia—of the international geophysical year. Scientists planned to in-terrogate the satellite about 50 times a day, or about twice during each eight-minute pass over a tracking station.

NASA said space charts would be drawn from this and future magnetometer experiments, giving man his first space route map in his bid for the moon and planets. The magnetometer was designed to detect high-radiation pockets which a space traveller would try to avoid.

PREDICTED STORMS

The magnetometer also was designed to study unaccountable disturbances called magnetic storms, which rage in the earth's umbrella-like magnetic field. Scientists sought to learn whether the storms could be predicted and compensated for.

NEW YORK (AP)—Soviet Premier Khrushchev flared angrily Thursday night at hecklers and threatened to leave a banquet hall unless they listened to his answer to a question.

He had been given a dinner by the Economic Club of New York and was involved in a question-and-answer period following a major address when he became angry.

The Soviet leader calmed

down afterward but not until he had heatedly shouted: "Surely you must show enough hospitality not to interrupt."

"If there is no desire to listen to me, I can go," Khrushchev was visibly upset when one of the dinner guests yelled "answer the question," and others groaned with dissent at his reply.

He had been asked to explain why Russia jammed American radio broadcasts, censored dispatches of American correspondents in the Soviet Union and did not allow free exchange of American publications.

Khrushchev halted his address and, staring straight ahead, said in a voice rising with anger:

"Gentlemen, I am an old sparrow, so to say, and you can't muddle me."

"I came here not to beg anything. I came here as a representative of a great country which has made a great October revolution and no

Police Pry Car Top To Free Hurt Pair

Police had to pry up the top of a large sedan to release one of two sailors injured

when their car crashed into a utility pole on Esquimalt Road late last night.

Second Snow For Quebec

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP)—The Saguenay district's second snowfall of the season heaped up 10 inches of snow Thursday around the villages of St. Gabriel de Ferland and Ste. Bernadette de Boileau.

Police said the car was travelling towards Naden when it skidded on a curve near the Boilermakers' Hall and slammed sideways against a utility pole on the right hand side of the road near Island Weavers Ltd.
